ILLEGAL SALE OF LIQUOR CHARGED

Paul H. McConnell, Proprietor of Court House Drug Store, Arrested on Two Affidavits.

FILED BY CHIEF OF POLICE

Alleged he Sold Whiskey to Two Men in Quantities of Less Than One Quart contrary to Law.

Paul H. McConnell, proprietor of the Court House drug store, was arrested today on two charges alleging the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor. The affidavits were filed in the circuit court by Prosecutor Stevens and the arrest was made by Sheriff Cavitt. McConnell was released on bond in the sum of $1,500, or $750 in each case.

One affidavit charges that he sold H. G. Haynes one quart of whiskey for the sum of $1.25 on or about February 19, 1915. It is alleged that he sold Haynes whiskey in less quantities than five gallons contrary to the laws of the state of Indiana. Both affidavits are signed by Chief of Police Rosenerance.

The other affidavit charges McConnell with selling one quart of whiskey to Stanley R. Wilson. The charge is similar to the first one and it is alleged that Wilson paid McConnell $1.25 for the quart.

When seen this afternoon Mr. McConnell would not comment on the cases and refused to make any statement. He did not remember the alleged sale, but stated that if a sale was made the parties signed the necessary paper stating that they desired it for medicinal purposes, as is provided by law.

It is understood that Haynes is a traveling man, living in Muncie. Prosecutor Stevens would make no statement other than he believed he had a case against the druggist. Stanley Wilson recently moved here from Newark, Ohio, and is connected in the bond and security business with A. C. Brown. In the affidavit in which McConnell is alleged to have sold Wilson the whiskey, the offense is alleged to have been committed on or about March 16.

WILL EARN $10,000,000

Combined Profits of Bucket Shops of Country Estimated.

New York, April 29.—Ten million dollars is what the bucket shops in the United States will make this year if they continue at the present rate. This estimate is based on an investigation by a special committee of the New York stock exchange which gave the facts to the United Press today. Over $100,000 has been spent by the exchange in collecting information about bucket shop operations in the last few years. Last year the profits of the bucket shops totaled over $7,000,000. This represents more than the combined profits of the eleven hundred members of the New York stock exchange for 1914.

COSTS TO RIDE FAST.
(By United Press.)
Indianapolis, Ind., April 29.—Ray East, a young blood of Anderson, is earning one dollar a day in the Marion county work house and unless he pays the fine and costs placed against him in court today for speeding his auto down Washington street, he will earn $34 at the work house. East was making forty-six miles an hour on a busy street. He offered no explanation.

MANY AUTOMOBILES ARE EXPECTED TO GO

Large Crowd is Anticipated For the Dixie Booster Trip to Brookville Tomorrow.

SEVERAL PLANNING TO GO

At least a half dozen automobiles will go to Brookville tomorrow for the Dixie highway booster meeting, because that many have been promised definitely, and if the weather is good, it is expected that a dozen or eighteen machines will be lined up for the trip. A great amount of interest is being displayed in the agitation to get Rushville on the proposed road to be run from Chicago to Miami, Florida, and business men and others are discussing it generally now.

Many automobile owners were uncertain today whether it would be possible for them to go tomorrow, but it is believed by those who have been interviewing prospective men to make the trip that most of them will find it possible to get away at the last moment and go to Brookville.

The party will leave from the corner of Main and Second streets at eleven-thirty o'clock and will go by the short route to Brookville through New Salem, Andersonville and Laurel, the route the road would follow should it come through here.

INVITATION TO G.O.P. LOVE FEAST

Decatur County Chairman Urges Rush County Republicans to Attend Meeting at Greensburg.

FOURTH DISTRICT GATHERING

A. L. Riggs, chairman of the Republican central committee, has received a letter from Bert Morgan, Decatur county chairman, inviting Rush county Republicans to the fourth district Republican love feast which will be held in Greensburg on May 14. Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, will be one of the principal speakers. It is very probable that James E. Watson of this city will also speak. A banquet will be served at six-thirty o'clock in the evening.

The Decatur county chairman asked that he be informed as soon as possible of how many may be expected to go from here. Other Greensburg persons have written here suggesting that a special train be obtained, and it is not improbable that something of that sort might be tried.

NAMES MEMBERS OF COMMISSION

Governor Ralston Today Announces Selection of Five Men to Study Taxation Problems.

CREATED BY RECENT LAW

Commissioners Are All Men Who Have Studied Question—to Serve Without Compensation.

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Indianapolis, April 29.—Governor Samuel M. Ralston today named the five members of the Commission on Taxation provided for by the recent legislature to investigate the problem of taxation in Indiana and consider what changes are necessary in the constitution and laws of the state to make them into a just and equitable system.

The members named are:

William A. Rawles, Progressive of Bloomington; professor of economics in Indiana University.

Fred Sims, Republican of Frankfort and Indianapolis; former secretary of state and state tax commissioner.

Jacob P. Dunn, Democrat of Indianapolis; city controller of Indianapolis.

Wm. L. Elder, Democrat of Indianapolis; real estate man.

Thomas D. Brookshire, Democrat of Roachdale, farmer.

All of the members of the new commission have been interested in tax reform for Indiana for a number of years. Professor Fawls is a student of political science and economics. He has written a great deal on the subject of taxation. His book on "Centralizing Tendencies in the Administration of Indiana" is considered authoritative.

Mr. Sims was appointed secretary of state by Governor Hanly to fill a vacancy. Later he became a member of the state tax commission, which position he resigned to become chairman of the Republican state committee. Mr. Elder has been active in real estate circles. He is one of the directing forces of the State Real Estate Exchange and the Indianapolis Real Estate Board. Mr. Brookshire is a member of the committee appointed by the Tax Conference. He represents the agricultural element. Mr. Dunn has written a history of Indiana; was formerly editor of the Sentinel here and later edited a Denver paper. He has written several articles on taxation.

The commission will serve without compensation, but is allowed expenses. An appropriation of $5,000 is allowed with which to employ a tax expert and defray necessary expenses. The commission is authorized to engage a secretary. Sections 2, 3 and 4 of the act creating the commission are quoted:

"Section 2. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation, but shall be allowed their necessary traveling and hotel expenses while attending to the business of the commission to be paid on warrants approved by the chairman of the commission. The commission shall organize within thirty (30) days after their appointment by electing a chairman. The commission may appoint a secretary. The commission shall employ an expert on taxation and shall fix his compensation. All necessary expenses of the secretary and taxation expert in connection with the business of the commission shall be allowed and paid in the same manner as prescribed for the payment of expenses of the commission.

"Section 3. The commission shall investigate the problem of taxation in Indiana, and shall consider what

PUTS QUESTION TO COMMISSION

Petition is Filed Today With State Body Raising Point Concerning Right of City

TO CHARGE FOR WATER METER

If Request of Ten Water Patrons is Sustained, City Will Have to Refund All Such Money

The right of the City of Rushville to charge for installing water meters and also of compelling the consumer to make the deposit before getting the meter, is questioned in a petition filed today with the Public Service Commission. The petition is filed in conjunction with the petition of the city asking for an increase in rates.

The petition was drawn up by F. T. Loftus and is signed by ten water patrons in the city that have refused to make the deposit for the meter or pay for the labor of installing them. It has been expected that someone would bring this question before the Public Service Commission and demand a hearing before the commission passed on the rate increase asked for by the city.

In the petition it is pointed out that the city is insisting that all users of city water install a meter at their own expense and that a time limit has been placed as May 1, or the city will discontinue their service. According to the petitioners this regulation of compelling the users of water, or the property owners, to put up a deposit and pay for the work of installing the meters is one of the things the City of Rushville asks the commission to approve in the original petition for a rate increase.

The petition sets out that the city has no right to do this thing and that the city, if allowed to do this, charges an excessive and unreasonable rate and that it ought not be approved. The commission is asked to investigate and the petitioners ask for a chance to be heard on this matter before passing on the rate increase asked for by the city.

If the Public Service Commission sustains the petition filed by Mr. Loftus the city will be compelled to refund all the money collected from water meters and for the money paid in labor for placing the meters. The authority of the city to make this charge is questioned and the filing of the petition makes the rate increase asked for by the city more doubtful than ever, it is stated. According to an order of the council all consumers were to have placed the meters in or made their deposits on or before May 1 or the water would be shut off. Mr. Loftus received such notice from the city and this is made an exhibit in the petition with the Public Service Commission.

Many people have contended that the city had no legal right to collect for water meters and if this is true it would also be true in the case of electric meters. The outcome of the case will be watched with interest.

The funeral services of David H. Bundy, age 61, a native of this county, who died at his home in Jackson township, Hancock county, were held at Nameless Creek church this afternoon at two o'clock. Mr. Bundy spent the greater part of his life in Hancock county. He is survived by a widow and two children.

High officials believe the attempted destruction of the bridges was a part of the plot to burn the entire city. Both fires started in the pavement.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY
(By United Press.)
New York, Apr. 29.—In these High Cost of Living days, Miss Annie S. Peck not only manages to keep her expenses for food down to twenty-five cents a day, but climbs mountains for diversion, on the thirty diet. Fruit, cereals and coffee form her breakfast. Milk, chocolate, a banana or a dish of oatmeal with raisins in it, she finds satisfying and nutritious for luncheon.

GEORGE IS BUSY GRADING PAPERS

Not Known by County Superintendent Yet How Many Eighth Year Graduates There Will be

LAW ON GRADING CHANGED

County Superintendent C. M. George is busy grading the examination papers of the eighth grade pupils. So far he has completed grading six townships, but the exact number of township graduates will not be known for some time. It was necessary to grade the papers of the Washington township pupils first as their commencement is next Wednesday in connection with the high school commencement at Raleigh. The Washington township pupils will not participate in the annual educational day exercises here this year because of this.

Superintendent George has received a letter from the state superintendent of public instruction calling attention to the changes in the law regarding the grading of papers. One of the principal changes in the law is that applicants for a license to teach in the high school and special branches shall have their papers graded by the state superintendent.

The petition sets out that the city has no right to do this thing and that the city, if allowed to do this, charges an excessive and unreasonable rate and that it ought not be approved. The commission is asked to investigate and the petitioners ask for a chance to be heard on this matter before passing on the rate increase asked for by the city.

If the Public Service Commission sustains the petition filed by Mr. Loftus the city will be compelled to refund all the money collected from water meters and for the money paid in labor for placing the meters. The authority of the city to make this charge is questioned and the filing of the petition makes the rate increase asked for by the city more doubtful than ever, it is stated. According to an order of the council all consumers were to have placed the meters in or made their deposits on or before May 1 or the water would be shut off. Mr. Loftus received such notice from the city and this is made an exhibit in the petition with the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Bundy spent the greater part of his life in Hancock county. He is survived by a widow and two children.

Following the recent slaughter of Canadians in the allied armies fighting in Belgium, the Vancouver Germans held a big celebration in a suburb. This was Tuesday night. This determined the government to interne all citizens of countries at war with the allies.

High officials believe the attempted destruction of the bridges was a part of the plot to burn the entire city. Both fires started in the pavement.

SCHMALZEL WINS A CLOSE VICTORY

High School Junior Will Represent High School in Annual Oratorical Contest Here May 8.

HAS MARGIN OF TWO POINTS

Ralph Hackleman Finishes Second and Gladys Wallace Third.

Two Ties on Points.

Harry Schmalzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Schmalzel, a junior in the Rushville high school, last night won the right to represent the school in the annual oratorical of the Central Indiana High School League, here May 8. He was placed first by the judges in the final preliminary over six other contestants.

The winner's subject was "The Power Conviction." Ralph Hackleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hackleman, was second, and Miss Gladys Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wallace, finished third. The former's subject was "Inglorious Peace" and the latter's "Peace and War."

Harry Schmalzel spoke with a vim and determination that brooked no defeat. He put spirit in his words and made them convincing. He seemed to sense the message of his oration and tried to make the audience feel as he did. The winner so truly interpreted his oration that he seemed to be the author.

It was a great victory because the right to represent the high school was more hotly contested this year than ever before. Interest that was aroused may best be understood when it is considered that there were fifteen contestants at the beginning of the race. Two preliminary events were necessary. Three were only seven left when the final started last night.

Considerable credit is given to Earl Marlatt, who coached all of the entrants. His enthusiasm endowed the contest with more spirit than ever before, he imparted his interest to the high school pupils. All of the high school students who contested for the honor did well.

The closeness of the event last night is revealed by the fact that there were two tied for third place and two tied for fourth place making it necessary to pick the one for the place by per cent. Even when the per cent. was figured, there was only two per cent difference between the contenders for each position.

The judges were J. B. Carr of Indianapolis, Everett Letts of Manual Training high school, Indianapolis,

Carnegie And Advertising

Testifying as to his benefactions and their purpose, Andrew Carnegie said:

"Why was Lazarus a beggar? Because he did not advertise. I believe in advertising."

Carnegie's present day advertising is largely to write himself down as a "wholesome, helpful citizen."

And in degree that is what every advertiser does. The whole keynote of advertising is service.

It does not pay unless it strikes the service note.

Newspaper Charity

"Space and copies of his paper go to make up the newspaper man's entire stock in trade," says the Fourth Estate in an editorial entitled, "Objects of Charity." "These two are all that he has to offer for sale to the public, and no one has ever yet given any sort of satisfactory reason why he should ever be asked by anyone to donate them."

"One thing newspaper men will never be able to understand is why any person will walk into a newspaper office and make himself or herself an object of charity and insist upon what they would abstain to ask for any other shop or place of business in the town. The principle and E. L. Rickert, superintendent of the Connersville public schools. An analysis of the judges' decision shows that the winner had six points, Ralph Hackleman, eight points, and Gladys Wallace twelve points.

J. B. Carr gave to the winner second position and a per cent of 88½. Everett Letts gave him third place and 85 per cent, and E. L. Rickert placed him first, with a per cent. of 84. Ralph Hackleman won a second, but the fact that E. L. Rickert cut him down to fifth place reduced his points considerably. Carr gave him first and Letts second.

The public, or at least a large portion of it, has some very erroneous ideas about these matters, and it is just to newspaper folks that these ideas be corrected in accordance with the same business principles that prevails in all other business establishments.

In the vast majority of cases, this generous charity on the part of the newspapers is blissfully taken for granted, and the paper's liberality abused. That which is purely a favor is accepted as a matter of course and what should be requests are couched as demands.

When the courtesy has been performed there is rarely appreciation, and more often dissatisfaction—generally silence.

The result in many other towns and cities has been that a ban has been put upon all free publicity, no matter what its object—even upon the church notice. In those cities such favors as the press bestows are properly appreciated and valued."

It must have been very disappointing to Democratic politicians last night to look around over Tomlinson hall and see only half of the seats filled when they had wasted so much energy advertising far and wide the Democratic love feast at which a big "headliner" like William C. Redfield, oracle of the president, was the speaker. If Republican love feasts held throughout the state are any criterion, we venture the opinion that Tomlinson hall would not hold the people should a Republican love feast be held in Indianapolis.

Takes Fling at Watson

Redfield Devotes Considerable Time to Former Congressman.

William C. Redfield, secretary of the United States department of commerce, speaking at the Democratic love feast last night, took a fling at James E. Watson of this city, declaring that if the former congressman had made statements credited to him, he did not know whereof he spoke. Redfield asserted the trade balance for this country the last ten months is $800,000,000. He devoted some time to Mr. Watson. He declared there were months under the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill that the foreign trade balance was with other countries. He came vigorously to the defense of the Underwood tariff bill.

BOMB THROWN INTO POLITICS

Roosevelt Side in Libel Suit Produces Letter From Governor Whitman Urging Union.

TO RID STATE OF MACHINES

Colonel Tells How he Approved Acquisition of Coal Co. by Steel Trust to Stop Panic.

(By United Press.)

Syracuse, N. Y., Apr. 29.—A bomb was thrown into New York politics today—and possibly into national politics—when the Roosevelt side in the libel suit of William Barnes for $50,000 produced a letter by Governor Whitman suggesting an alliance of New York Progressives and Progressive Republicans to rid the state of machine misgovernment.

Colonel Roosevelt said the letter was written in February, 1915 when Whitman was district attorney. He relied upon it, he said, when he attacked Barnes during the 1914 primaries.

Roosevelt's testimony was finally concluded at 12:15. The colonel gave a dramatic recital of how he approved acquisition by the steel trust of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company "to stop in the 1907 panic."

Gesticulating dramatically, he recited how he was told by steel magnates that the nation's financial structure was tottering and that it was necessary to approve the steel merger and stop the panic by holding up Wall Street.

The colonel also told how he had prosecuted big corporations despite their contributions to his presidential campaign fund.

The Whitman letter was written to Charles H. Duell, Jr., of New York and was shown to Roosevelt upon his return last May from South America.

"While you were governor or president was there any visible government on your part?" asked Attorney Bowers.

"There was not one particle," the colonel thundered, snapping his teeth violently.

The crowd laughed and Justice Andrews threatened to clear the court room.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

PARK READY FOR OPENING GAME

Fans Can Expect Fast Game Sunday When Rushville Tackles Strong Dayton Shilohs.

DAVY SIGNS NEW PITCHER

Also Gets Good Outfielder to Take Badel's Place—Band Concert Before Game.

Rushville's new ball park will be opened Sunday with a real team. The Dayton Shilohs are considered as strong a team as the local team will meet this year and the fans are going to have nothing but the best of teams. The Shilohs are coming to win and the Rushville team will have plenty to do.

Manager Dowling in a letter here states that he has the best team this year that ever wore a Shiloh uniform. This is going some as the team has been playing ball for the past fourteen years. The Shilohs are a salaried team and a real battle is expected for the very first game.

The work on the park is practically completed. The diamond is in first class condition and it can be truthfully stated that the park is one of the best in the state. The large roomy grand stand and the pretty diamond gives the place the appearance of a league park and it is believed the public will show its appreciation of the effort being made to produce fast clean baseball in this. The grand stand was built with the intentions of giving the fans a comfortable place, and the board of directors are well satisfied with their efforts. A visit to the park is convincing. Hundreds of fans visit the place each day and have followed the work from the very start.

The usual ceremonies will mark the opening game and the dedication of the new park. John Spinnery, of Cincinnati, has promised to attend. He will give a short talk and the Odd Fellows band will give an hour's concert before the game. It is hoped to make the opening game a record breaker and from present indications the expectations will be filled.

The fans will get their first glimpse at the team that is expected to cop the Indiana State league pennant. The league season will open on Sunday, June 6, and these preliminary teams will give a good line on the strength of the team. Davidson will pitch Earl Vordenburg. This will be his first appearance here and fans are anxious to look him over. He is a big right handed pitcher and has plenty of "stuff." His work is almost sure to please. Bob Goodfellow, will do the catching. He is known to most of the fans and is considered a classy catcher. Goodfellow has improved wonderfully in his pegging to second. Ed Sandman will hold down the first job. He is a powerful hitter and a clean fielder.

Another new face on the team is Schlenker at second base. Schlenker played with Richmond last season and makes a good running mate for Red Hasselback at short stop. Schlenker is a good hitter and a fast fielder. Hasselback is considered one of the best short stops in the state and this is going some.

On third base will be sent Capt. George Rohe, one time member of the Chicago Cubs and the hero of one world's series. Rohe will captain the team and his experience should prove valuable. Rohe has forgotten more baseball than the ordinary semi-pro player knows. The outfield is composed of a trio of fast players. In right it will be either Geyer or Hollis. In center will be seen Doe Hellmund and in left "Cotton" Cordes will be seen. "Humpy" Badel who was slated to play right has been lost to the local team, having gone to the Coal League in Virginia. Manager Davidson states that he secured Lefty Geyer or Hollis to play right field in Baedel's place.

Davy states that both are good men and Badel will not be missed. "They are both good men," says Davidson, "and you know I want no dead ones." He also announces that he has secured a new left hand pitcher. He is Red Dacey, now under contract to the Valdosta, Ga., team but would not report because of a cut in salary. Fox the other pitcher has been released and Dacey and Vordenburg will be the pitchers for the year.

The game will start promptly at 2:45 o'clock. Freddie Long will umpire.

The Arlington high school, which closed the year 1914—1915 last night by holding its annual commencement exercises, has to its credit an achievement which no other high school in the county can claim. For three years the graduating class has been publishing an annual, entitled "The Rambler," which is not only a credit to the school but to the county.

"The Rambler" is a book of seventy-two pages, all filled with the most creditable material, including some local art, contributed by Miss Elizabeth Cole, in charge of the music and art department in the high school and Arthur Conaway.

"The Rambler" staff is made up of the following persons: Nellie Woods, editor-in-chief; Mary Woods, assistant editor; Beatrice Bagley, assistant editor, and Omar McKibben, business manager and the following associate editors: Mary Woods, social; Henry Collins, athletic; Elizabeth Cole, art; Arthur Conaway, art; Beatrice Bagley, alumni, and Clark Offutt, alumni.

The annuals contain pictures of the high school building, faculty and members of the graduating class. John Geraghty of this city is principal of the high school. Last year was his first at Arlington, when he held the position of assistant principal. Miss Erema Wilk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Wilk of this city is the assistant principal. Miss Elizabeth Cole of Morristown is at head of the art and music department of the high school.

The "Foreword" from the senior class reads as follows: "We offer this volume as the result of our efforts to produce an Annual in accordance with the custom of the senior class of this high school. We know it is impossible to please all of you with all of it, or some of you with any of it. We reluctantly give it to public criticism as it is almost a part of us. We trust you will receive it kindly, the record of our last high school year."

The annual is composed of an editorial department, faculty, a tribute to "A. H. S." by Principal John Geraghty, a department for the senior class including class history, prophecies, the class will and the class poem; departments for the other three classes, all of which contain group pictures of the classes. One of the bright spots in "The Rambler" is a tribute "To The Five Little Girls," referring to the graduating class, by J. L. Shauke for many years at the head of Arlington high school. There is also a contribution by Miss Cole and Miss Wilk and a poem on "Our Janitor".

Then there are a number of other interesting departments, including those devoted to athletics (which contains a picture of the basketball team) alumni, social notes, school calendar, "A New Fable in Slang" by Henry Collins, "A New Year's Resolution" by Mary Northam, "Love Vs. Gossip" by Daniel Merrill, "Hallow'en" by the same author, "A Hallow'en Story" by Wallace Brown, "The conversion of Murray" by Leon Stanley, and last but not by any means the least comes the portion devoted to jokes.

The five members of the graduating class are Beatrice Bagley, Mary Woods, Nellie Woods, Elizabeth Nelson and Clara Sunman.

FRAUD CHARGED IN DAMAGE SUIT

E. A. Frazees Says in Case on Trial
He Was Induced by Defendant
to go to Florida

ENTIRELY AT ITS EXPENSE

One Deposition Introduced by Plaintiff
Secured After Walk of 39
Miles to Find Squire

Newcastle, Ind., April 29.—The suit for $6,000 damages filed by Edward A. Frazees of Rush county against the National Land Company of Chicago and Florida, a corporation dealing in the sale of Florida land which was brought here on a change of venue from Rush county and which is on trial in the Henry circuit court before Judge Gause and a jury is one of the most interesting cases ever on trial in this county. Frazees charges that he paid the defendant company $4,800 for 160 acres of land in DeSoto county, Florida and that the land was not as represented. He charges fraud and misrepresentation.

Frazees states that in January 1913 he and his son Edward were making arrangements to take a pleasure trip to Florida and that the land company through its agent learned that they were going and induced them to go as the guests of the company, offering as a special inducement cheap fare and the best of accommodations if they would go on one of the company's excursions.

The plaintiff states that he accepted the invitation and went to Florida and states that the land company represented that it was the owner of 42,000 acres of land in DeSoto county and that one member of the company alone had paid down $150,000 on the purchase price. Frazees asserts that the company in order that it might cheat and defraud him represented that a railroad was being constructed across the open and unsettled prairie between Whittier, Fla., and Bassenger, Fla., and that the terminus of the railroad would be within one mile of the land it sold to the plaintiff.

Frazees further alleges that the defendant company fraudulently represented that one boat was already running up and down the Kissimmee river between Bassenger and Kissimmee, Fla., and that another would soon be running. It is charged by Frazees that the one boat ceased to operate and that a rival boat never did start on its first trip.

As to the land he purchased the Rush county man states it was represented to him as being good sugar cane land; that it was no more difficult to raise sugar cane than to raise corn, wheat or oats in Indiana that the land was fine for celery and cranberries; that it was the finest land in Florida for oranges, grapefruit and other citrus fruits; that three crops could be raised annually on the land; that a crop of corn, then potatoes and finally a crop of cabbage and tomatoes had been raised in one year on the same patch of ground.

Frazees states that when he purchased the land, it was represented to him that he was purchasing an orange grove with the other land but asserts that the orange grove was not on the property he purchased.

Frazees is attempting to prove that the National Land Company did not even own the property but that in truth it merely held an option on the property; that the railroad mentioned to him has never been completed and was not even a possibility; that the one boat running between Bassenger and Kissimmee has ceased to run; that even if crops could be raised there is no way garden, orchard or farm products could be marketed; that the representations concerning the raising of sugar cane, celery, cranberries, garden products and citrus fruits were false because the land is so poor and sterile as to be absolutely worthless and that corn can only be obtained from shipping from the northern states; that the defendant company used a fraudulent map in showing the location of the farm land; that at times two thirds of the land is under water that the drainage is defective; that the soil is composed largely of sand and is so poor and sterile as to be of no value for the raising of farm products and that he is now convinced of the falsity of each and every one of the company's representations.

Because of the agitation throughout the country regarding "fake" land schemes and especially Florida land, the case is attracting unusual attention here. Some of the jurymen themselves have had Florida land dealings and the testimony given in the case is unusual. Depositions gathered from many sections in Florida add to the interest. One deposition introduced by the plaintiff was secured after a walk of 39 miles to find a justice of peace and then the evidence was taken with the parties sitting on the ground and the "Squire" sitting majestically on a stump. The case will probably be finished this week.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and thick with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussel mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

CAR OF THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Ask the Engineer

We hope you have in your acquaintance a competent engineer.

We would like you to get his opinion of the Hupmobile.

Engineers constitute a little world of and unto themselves. They are keen critics, but generous ones, when they encounter good work. And these sharpest of observers say the Hupmobile is good.

In Detroit—where there are many automobile engineers—one hears the highest praise of the Hupmobile.

It would be too much to say that there is not a dissenting voice regarding the Hupmobile among Detroit engineers.

But it would be hard to find one who holds an unfavorable view.

By common consent they have settled on the Hupmobile as one car they can unite in commending.

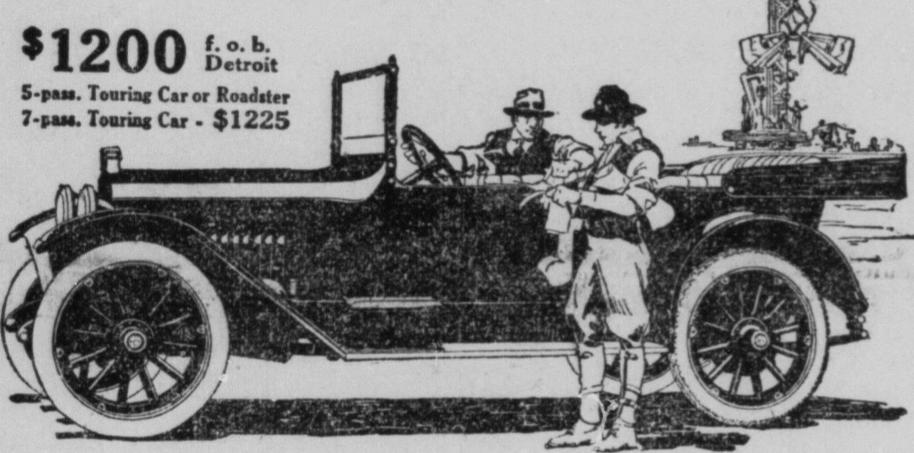

Now this is not mere sentiment or friendliness. Reputable engineers will not barter away their professional standing by unmerited praise.

When they approve of the Hupmobile—and especially of its splendid small bore, long stroke motor—that approval means something.

It is an endorsement founded on extraordinary experience and knowledge.

It is a source of pride to us—and a recommendation you can not afford to overlook. Take the engineer's expert opinion along with all the other good things that you hear about the Hupmobile. Let us prove the Hupmobile in a quality test.

OPENS AT EVANSVILLE TODAY

Prof. R. L. Sackett Discusses Road
Surface Now in Use—Other
Addresses Made

(Written for United Press.)

Evansville, Ind., April 29.—The first district road school held at Evansville under the auspices of Purdue University opened this morning with a large attendance of road officials and farmers from the various counties of southern Indiana.

The program of the forenoon consisted of an automobile tour over fifty miles of typical roads in Vanderburgh County. This trip gave the road officials and farmers opportunity to study brick, concrete stone gravel and dirt roads. The road superintendent of Vanderburgh County with Prof. Martin of Purdue and Mr. J. H. Dodge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture were in charge of the party and took time to point out the strong and weak points of the various roads. Suggestions were also made for repair and upkeep of roads and the methods that might be adopted to secure the best results.

The afternoon program was held in the auditorium of the Evansville high school. The opening talk was made by Prof. R. L. Sackett of the School of Civil Engineering of Purdue University, on "Modern Road Surfaces." Prof. Sackett opened his talk with a statement of the relation of Purdue University to the public works of the state. He stated that Purdue had no desire to interfere with any of the public officials of the state nor to supplant them in any of their authority. The University feels however, that the members of its faculty can often be of very much assistance. With this in mind there has been established the Department of Highway Engineering to give advice on the road problems of Indiana.

Prof. Sackett then took up development of the road surfaces now in use. He considered the kind of traffic which was carried by the roads sometime ago, contrasted with what they must carry now. Each of the various types of road surface was described and their advantages and disadvantages discussed. It was very clearly shown that the cheapest pavement is not always the best when all things are considered. Prof. Sackett also placed before the Road school the fact that no one road surface will be satisfactory under all conditions. All of the local conditions should be considered before a road surface is selected.

The subject of "Maintenance of Earth and Gravel Roads" was then taken up by Prof. C. E. Martin of the Highway Department of Purdue. Prof. Martin, in his talk supplemented with demonstration materials, took up the fundamental operations necessary for proper maintenance of earth and gravel roads.

Drainage is of the most importance. No road will keep in good shape unless the water can be kept off of it. The road must be crowned and the water led to the ditches. The ditches must be kept clean and must lead to some outlet. In some soils tile drains will be necessary.

The cheapest and best tool to maintain an earth or gravel road is the road drag. A full sized road drag was used to demonstrate the proper method of using the drag. The members of the Road school were warned however that the drag could be abused and that its use on a road which was not properly graded up would result in failure.

The various methods of placing gravel were discussed and their good points and bad points stated.

The use of various tools for road maintenance was described in full.

The concluding number on the program for the afternoon was a round table on road materials. During the past year Purdue University has tested many samples of road materials. A large number of these samples were shown together with the results of the tests. Samples of road materials brought by the various road officials were then examined and discussed. It is felt that this part of the program was one of the most interesting and helpful since the question of material is now before every road official.

The program for Friday will include talks on "Dust Prevention," "Sand Clay Roads," "Maintenance of Macadam Roads," and other miscellaneous subjects to be brought up by those in attendance.

COMPLEXION OF WAR CHANGING

Spring Comes in War Zone and Grass

PLANTING GOES FORWARD

Tillers of Soil Work Three and Four

A fifth story will appear tomorrow.

By William G. Shepherd.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

With the British Army in Northern France, April 17, (By mail to N. Y.)

Spring has come.

The complexion of war is changing.

The flying men come down with the news that everyday the grass is getting greener in the No Man's Land between the trenches; no one dares to go out there to tramp it down.

Trees that are landmarks with their bare branches in the winter time are changing shape as their buds become leaves and the officers themselves daily becoming more and more strangers to the landscape.

Ploughing in France has apparently been as extensive as ever before. In the fields old men and boys plough while women do the sowing. Unploughed fields are rarely seen. Ploughing and planting is going on up to within a mile of the English trenches and the French farms are scenes of agricultural activity three and four miles within the zone of shell fire.

Around the English headquarters all of the soil is in crop and General French has arranged that none of his army shall encroach in any way on farm land except under the most urgent necessity. To trample the ploughed land is an offense which must be explained at the English headquarters to the satisfaction of the commander in chief. The cavalry, including the Indians, find a small piece of meadow here and there on which they exercise their horses, but the French farmer is to be paid for any damage that may be done to his crops of hay.

There is no place within miles of headquarters where space can be found for collecting large forces of men for review purposes. General French recently, reviewing part of the forces which had participated in the battle of Neuve Chapelle traveled to several different spots within a radius of a dozen miles where the men were drawn up in comparatively small bodies.

"I can ride around and meet them" he said. "I'd rather do that than spoil a wheat crop on some big farm."

In the vicinity of headquarters it looks as if agriculture was crowding the army out of the neighborhood. It is only when one approaches the lines that the army begins to get the upper hand in the curious conflict between the aged French farmer and the rifle bearing English soldier.

STOPPED RUSHVILLE MAN'S BACKACHE

He Tells of Remarkable Results From New, Scientific Remedy.

Mr. Chase Litterell of 830 North Arthur street, Rushville, Ind., says: "Some time ago I noticed severe pains across the small of my back. My kidneys were off in action and the Kidney secretions were highly colored. I suffered continually with the backache. At night it was impossible for me to control my kidneys and I would have to get up very often. For these ills I got a box of Lloyd's Kidney & Rheumatism Tablets, the new scientific prescription. The results were fine. I was surprised that any medicine would give such quick relief. Lloyd's relieved me instantly and I have not had a return of the trouble. I am sure that others would find quick relief in Lloyd's. I did."

Together they carried the sleeping girl out of the room into a larger apartment. A single electric light was burning on the top of a square mirror fixed upon an easel. Towards this they carried the girl and laid her in an easy chair almost opposite to it.

"The battery is just on the left," Laura whispered.

Quest nodded.

"Give me the band."

She turned away for a moment and disappeared in the shadows. When she returned, she carried a curved band of flexible steel. Quest took it from her, attached it by means of a coil of wire to the battery, and with firm, soft fingers slipped it on to Lenora's forehead. Then he stepped back.

"She's a subject, Laura—I'm sure of it! Now for our great experiment!" They watched Lenora intently.

"Lenora," Quest said, slowly and firmly, "your mind is full of one subject. You see your mistress in her chair by the fireside. She is toying with her diamonds. Look again. She lies there dead! Who was it entered the room, Lenora? Look! Look! Gaze into that mirror. What do you see there?"

The girl's eyes had opened. They were fixed now upon the mirror—distracted, full of unholy things.

"Try harder, Lenora," he muttered, his own breath laboring. "It is there in your brain! Look!"

For a single second the smooth surface of the mirror was obscured. A room crept dimly like a picture into being, a fire upon the hearth, a girl leaning back in her chair. A door in the background opened. A man strolled out. He crept nearer to the girl—his eyes fixed upon the diamonds, a thin, silken cord twisted round his wrist. Suddenly she saw him too late! His hand was upon her lips, his face seemed to start almost from the mirror—then blackness!

Lenora opened her eyes. She was still in the easy-chair before the fire. "Mr. Quest!" she faltered.

He looked up from some letters which he had been studying.

"I am so sorry," he said politely. "I really had forgotten that you were nervous fears of any sort, yet, having advanced a couple of yards along the hallway of the house which he had just entered without difficulty, he came to a standstill, oppressed with the sense of impending danger.

"The battery is just on the left," Laura whispered.

There was no direct response, yet from somewhere upstairs he heard the half-smothered cry of a woman. He gripped his revolver in his fingers. He took a quick step forward. The floor gave way beneath him. He was falling into blackness.

The fall itself was scarcely a dozen feet. He picked himself up, his shoulder bruised, his head swimming a little. Suddenly a gleam of light shone down. A trap-door above his head was slid a few inches back. The flare of an electric torch shone upon his face, a man's voice addressed him.

"Not the great Sanford Quest? This surely cannot be the greatest detective in the world walking so easily into the spider's web!"

"Any chance of getting out?" Quest asked laconically.

"None!" was the bitter reply. "You've done enough mischief. You're there to rot!"

"Why this animus against me, my friend Macdougal?" Quest demanded. "You and I have never come up against one another before. I didn't like the life you led in New York ten years ago, or your friends, but you've suffered nothing through me."

"If I let you go," once more came the man's voice, "I know very well in what chair I shall be sitting before a month has passed. I am James Macdougal, Mr. Sanford Quest, and I have got the Ashleigh diamonds, and I have settled an old grudge, if not of my own, of one greater than you. That's all. A pleasant night to you!"

The door went down with a bang.

"A perfect oublie," he remarked to himself, as he held a match over his head a moment or two later, "built for the purpose. It must be the house we failed to find which Bill Taylor used to keep before he was shot. Smooth brick walls, smooth brick floor, only exit twelve feet above one's head. Human means, apparently, are useless.

At a quarter to nine he sat down to breakfast in his rooms.

"At nine o'clock," he told his servant, "a young lady will call. Bring her up."

The door was suddenly opened. Lenora walked in. Quest glanced in surprise at the clock.

"My fault!" he exclaimed. "We are slow. Good-morning, Miss Lenora!"

She came straight to the table. She laid a little packet upon the table. Quest opened it coolly. The Ashleigh diamonds flashed up at him. He led Lenora to a chair and rang a bell.

"Prepare a bedroom upstairs," he ordered. "Ask Miss Roche to come here. . . . Laura," he added, as his secretary entered, "will you look after this young lady?"

A few minutes later Inspector

"You've Had a Rough Time, Lenora." French was announced. Quest nodded in a friendly manner.

"Some coffee, inspector?"

"I'd rather have those diamonds!"

Quest threw them lightly across the table.

The inspector whistled.

"And now, French, will you be here, please, at midnight, with three men, armed?"

"Here?" the inspector repeated.

Quest nodded.

"Our friend," he said, "is going to be mad enough to walk into hell even, when he finds out what he thinks has happened."

"It wasn't any of Jimmy's lot?"

Sanford Quest shook his head.

"French," he said, "keep mum, but it was the elderly family retainer, Macdougal. I felt restless about him. He has lost the girl—he was married to her, by the bye—and the jewels. No fear of his slipping away. I shall have him here at the time I told you."

"You've a way of your own of doing these things, Mr. Quest," the inspector admitted grudgingly.

"Mostly lucky," Quest replied. "Take a cigar, and so long, inspector. They want me to talk to Chicago on another little piece of business."

It was a few minutes before midnight when Quest parted the curtains of a room on the ground floor of his house in Georgia square and looked out into the snow-white street. Then he turned around and addressed the figure lying as though asleep upon the sofa by the fire.

"Lenora," he said, "I am going out. Stay here, if you please, until I return."

He left the room. For a few moments there was a profound silence. Then a white face was pressed against the window. There was a crash of glass. A man covered with snow sprang into the apartment. He moved swiftly to the sofa, and something black and ugly swayed in his hand.

"So you've deceived me, have you?" he panted. "Handed over the jewels, cracked me, and given me the double cross! Anything to say?"

Macdougal leaned forward, his white face distorted with passion. The life-preserver bent and quivered behind him, cut the air with a swish and crashed full upon the head.

The man staggered back. The weapon fell from his fingers. For a moment he was paralyzed. There was no blood upon his hand, no cry-silence unnatural! He looked again. Then the lights flashed out all around him. There were two detectives in the doorway, their revolvers covering him—Sanford Quest, with Lenora in the background. In the sudden illumination Macdougal's horror turned almost to hysterical rage. He had wasted his fury upon a dummy!

"Take him, men," Quest ordered. "Hands up, Macdougal. Your number's up."

The handcuffs were upon him before he could move.

"What about the young woman?" the inspector asked.

Lenora stood in an attitude of despair, her head downcast. She had turned a little away from Macdougal. Her hands were outstretched. It was as though she were expecting the handcuffs.

"I shall have them at nine o'clock this morning," Sanford Quest promised, "and hand you over the murderer somewhere around midnight."

"The Ashleigh diamonds, eh?" the inspector asked eagerly.

World to Know French Women Are Not Mere Creatures of Pleasure

BY HENRY WOOD.

Paris, Apr. 9: (By mail to New York)—The world is to know at least that the French women of today is not a mere creature of "pleasure, of coquetry, and of perfidious."

This is the decision just taken by a committee composed of the leading women of France. Amongst its members are Madame Raymond Poincaré, wife of the president; Madame Alphonse Daudet, wife of the great writer; Madame René Viviani, wife of the Prime Minister; Madame Delcas, wife of the Minister of Foreign Affairs; Madame Camille Flammarion, wife of the great French astronomer; Madame Victor Augagneur, wife of the Minister of Marine; Madame Juliette Adam; the Marquise of Ganay; Countess Greffulhe, Duchess of Uzes and a dozen others whose names are equally prominent.

A world-wide crusade on behalf of the good reputation of the French women is to be begun at once. The world at large is to be taught that she is all that a woman should be, and especially the neutral nations in the present war to be taught to love and respect her. For the crusade is a direct outcome of the war.

With their husbands, brothers, fathers and sons dying in the trenches for "la patrie" the women of France declare that they have been stung to the quick by the impression spread abroad that they are unworthy of the men who are thus nobly dying for France. This impression they declare is nothing less than a part of the campaign which Germany has carried on the world over to the detriment of France. Especially they insist that the Germans sought everywhere to instill the ideas that the French woman of today is a mere being of lightness and decadence.

In support of these charges against the Germans, the women of the committee have elected a vast quantity of literature diffused they insist by Germany in all parts of the world. New agencies, subsidized newspapers and even private correspondence are a few of the means which they insist Germany has employed to this end.

A counter-organization, not to blacken the character of the Germans

but to make the world know and love the real character of the French woman, is what the committee plans. As yet it has not made public what will be its method of campaigning, but has established permanent headquarters and invited not only the women of France, but French women in every country in the world to join in the crusade.

The French authorities are having a great deal less difficulty in locating German spies than they are in finding small boys who persist in running away from home and joining the troops at the front. Recently the number who have gone to save "la patrie" has become so great, that special guards have been placed at all the depots to prevent their departure.

One of the latest to elude these and presumably to reach the front where he has not yet been located is 12-year-old Edmond Liorret, who lived in the Rue de Fublaines at Meaux. He went to revenge himself on the "boches" for having wounded his brother. The note he left to his mother reads:

"Mamma; It is not worth while to try and find me as, I have gone to the front. Remember that a Frenchman must always die for France. I have gone to revenge Leon. Adieu."

M. Valery-Radot, son-in-law of Pasteur, has opened a hospital at Reuilly for soldiers rendered blind during the present war. The number of these is declared to be far greater than any one up to the present time has supposed.

Aside from hundreds of cases of blindness brought about through direct injury to the eyes, it has been found that even more cases develop in an indirect way. These come from fragments of bursting shells which strike the soldiers at the base of the spinal column. The injury to the nerves there brings about blindness. It is especially this of cases that M. Valery-Radot will undertake to provide for at his hospital. He already has 250 cases.

Those for whom a cure cannot be effected will be taught an occupation and positions found for them where they will be self-supporting.

Most Popular Wartime Diversion of Britshers Now Is Hero Worship

BY WILBUR S. FORREST

London, Apr. 14: (By mail to New York)—The most popular war time diversion of Britshers today is hero worship.

London shopkeepers are authority for statement that they can hardly keep up with the demand for engravures of Lord Kitchener, Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, General French and other popular idols of the present conflict.

From every shop window there beams on the populace the faces of these military heroes and it is estimated that before many moons few homes in Britain will be without the likeness of some of the men who are leading the history making legions on the sea and in the field.

Along with the demand for highly polished and well appearing pictures of England's war leaders, caricatures of German war notabilities including the Kaiser, Admiral Von Tirpitz, Sultan of Turkey and others are in demand.

"The best hero sellers are Lord Kitchener, and Sir John Jellicoe, but I am also selling hundreds of King Alberas, Sir John Frenches, General Joffres and prince of Wales," said a Strand book stall proprietor today. "Included among the heavy purchasers are public houses and city offices while thousands of pictures have gone from this shop alone to private homes. As many as otherwise are ordered with expensive frames."

This shopkeeper declared he was "having a time of it" buying the pictures from the wholesale dealers who have recently been unable to get adequate supplies from the manufacturers. Another popular seller in London bookstalls is a recently issued poster of a British "tommy," pipe in mouth and rifle shouldered inscribed "Come Along Boys." This poster is one of the many issued by the government to stimulate recruiting and its appearance immediately signalized its popularity.

Among the most popular postcard sellers are those printed in the catch-phrase language of the government recruiting office and pictures of officers and privates who have distinguished themselves on the field.

American tourists who have suffered the pangs of seasickness crossing the English channel between Calais and Dover may now take heart.

Travelers to France within the next few years will in all probability be able to take a railway train in London and remain in it, if they desire until they arrive in Paris.

Arthur Pell, member of Parliament and the most eminent authority in England on the subject of solving the channel problem is authority for the statement that the European war has made imperative the building of a railway tunnel under the channel. He believes the project imperative and has issued the following statement:

"We can only take the results of the war as we have found them. The tunnel could have been used for the transport of our expeditionary army and stores which it could have carried with safety, and the delay and the expense of the channel would have been avoided. How many millions of pounds this would have saved we cannot calculate.

"The supporters of the tunnel may rest assured that on the termination of the war the matter will be pressed forward without delay and this is one of the great works to look forward to when peace is made. It will unite us with France by the ties of increased friendship and commerce will follow from increased facilities of communication."

The question has already been taken up in Parliament and now rests in the hands of the Committee of Imperial Defense.

Selling Is MORE than Trading Stock for Money!

Selling is part of the scheme of business. Most anyone can sell once, but selling so you can create permanent customers is selling successfully. That is why we carry the large stock of buggies we have on our sample floor for prospective customers or purchasers to make their selections from. They don't have to take something they don't want, as we carry every style of buggy that there is a demand for. Then after the customer has made his selection from our stock we tell him exactly what the buggy is and it has to be just as we represent it or we make it that way. The customer takes no chances. He is sure to get just what he pays for. ONE sale reduces itself to a confidence game unless the buyer is perfectly satisfied. Satisfaction sends a customer away with a smile that won't come off. That is why our buggy business has grown. We have found out how to hold customers after we get them and every satisfied customer is bound to bring a new customer sooner or later. Right now our stock of buggies is complete and if you are needing a buggy come in and make your selection. We have the style you want and we would be glad to have you for one of our satisfied customers. We know you will be glad when you give us your vehicle business, so do it now.

TENDENCY TO GET TOGETHER

Democratic Factions in Indiana See Necessity of Coalition if They Have Chance in 1916.

TAGGART AND KERN MAY JOIN

"Forward Lookers" Are Beginning to Look For the Way Back About This Time.

Robert G. Tucker, Indiana correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer, says that the "Forward-lookers" in Indiana Democracy are looking for the way back in now because the factions in the party in Hoosierdom know that if they have a ghost of a show in 1916, they will have to get together. He says in part concerning the "merger."

Fear of defeat in Indiana next year is causing many of the Democratic brethren to listen to reason. There are indications that a truce of some kind will be patched up between the machine and the anti-machine faction. The latter may be designated also as the Wilson-Bryan "forward-lookers," who pose as the only friends of the President and the Commoner. The existence of their organization is justified on the ground that it is required to save the President and the Commoner from humiliation at the hands of National Committeeman Taggart and his cohorts.

It seems to be dawning on some of the leaders of the two factions that neither can save the President and the rest of the ticket in Indiana from defeat next year unless there is a united party. As saviors of the President it is not regarded as likely that the noble band of "forward lookers" would get very far in a rough-and-tumble fight with the Republicans without the support of the Taggart contingent, which happens to be the largest part of the party.

There may be more running wild on the bases during the next few months by the overzealous "forward lookers," but they are an undercurrent now indicating very clearly that Senator John Worth Kern and his active lieutenants are about ready to call a halt on the flow of anti Taggart talk that some of their ardent followers have indulged in for the last two years.

What would happen to the President's candidacy for re-election in Indiana with the Taggart contingent opposed to it is too obvious to need analysis. There are men among the "forward lookers" who can see now that in order to save the President in this state there must be a strong working agreement between the rival elements.

It is declared that there is a disposition on the part of the regulars to bring about a better understanding with the "forward lookers." The presence of former Mayor John W. Holtzman of Indianapolis, and other staunch anti-Taggart men at the conference here a few days ago to arrange for an aggressive summer campaign to counteract the activity of the Republicans is taken to mean that the state organization has thrown down the bars to its opponents.

Holtzman was placed at the head of the Committee on Arrangements for the love feast here April 28, at which Secretary Redfield, of the Department of Commerce, is to speak. He has accepted the post and is doing whatever he can to arouse interest in the meeting. It is the understanding that in the district meetings that are to be held that the "forward lookers" will be invited to share the responsibility for arrangement of the program.

Whether the "forward lookers" will be satisfied with anything short of the retirement of Taggart as the leader of the organization remains to be seen. For a long time Taggart's close friends have said that he was anxious to retire. He offered his resignation two years ago as National Committeeman, but it was not accepted. His critics probably help to keep him in the game by their determination to drive him out.

Says Most Americans Have Wrong Views on the Philippine Question

BY BURTON K. STANDISH
(Written for United Press.)

Washington, April 28.—In the opinion of Manuel L. Quezon, resident commissioner from the Philippines, most Americans approach the question of Philippine progress and readiness for self-government from the wrong standpoint, that is to say from the standpoint of American institutions and western habit of thought.

"The Filipinos are a people of Oriental habits and type of mind, resident in the Tropics and subject to their own conditions of life and industry," says the commissioner. "It seems to me that to expect them to emulate the United States in all particulars is a gross perversion of the teachings of human experience or any sound political philosophy."

Do not understand, however, that Dr. Quezon considers the Filipinos have failed of proving their capacity, even if judged by our standards. He does not. He will offer you the record of the Filipino legislature and cite the progress in government made since a larger measure of self-government was introduced by the present administration. By our own measuring stick, he asserts, the Filipino has proved himself to be of man's size, and he should be left free to work out his own destiny.

"Many of the conditions which exist today in the United States are not ideal, but they are the product of many years of labor and development. They are intended to meet the peculiar needs of a highly industrialized society with a structure totally different from any that is found in any Eastern country. I think the thoughtful student of race development will concede that it is far better that a nation should evolve its own type of culture and of government and should follow its own instincts in selecting a path toward the attainment of a higher civilization than that it should be made a slavish imitator of any other country or group of countries, however, elevated may be the latter. Even if such a nation did not as well in the initial stages of self-government and it might do with foreign preceptors, nevertheless the slower and less perfect progress was the more solid and stable and therefore vastly to be preferred.

"I question more seriously that any nation can successfully direct the course of development that must be followed by another. The education of the individual is most successful when it affords the best vehicle for self-expression; the education of the nation or the race proceeds most naturally as a matter of internal evolution. Mistakes may be made; when made they bring their own penalty. Now, as always, it is true that experience is the best teacher, and that only by endeavoring, aspiring and striving can a government attain to practical efficiency. That has been conspicuously the history of the Anglo-Saxon race. Magna Charta was not bestowed by some friendly conqueror, but was the product of long years of struggle and effort. American constitutional government was not the gift of Howe, Cornwallis or the King of England.

"Is there not a way of national progress from within as compared to that stimulated from without that hasty thinkers sometimes overlook? Are we mindful of the fact that the one priceless advantage of self-development is that it proceeds along the proper line. In accord with the tendencies, peculiarities and special abilities of the people; in other words that it is always a natural growth, while progress imposed from without may result in an unnatural type of evolution?

"Without being over critical, let me speak of this matter frankly. It is a fact that the work of the Americans in the Philippines has not been as free from error as the former officials of the Philippino government would have us believe. There have been mistakes—mistakes that were very costly to the Filipino tax-payers; there have been injustices and wrongs. Some things have been overdone and other things have been neglected. I do not however, on that account underrate the value of the work as a whole and I gladly reiterate that considering all the circumstances the Americans have done marvels. I only wish to note the fact that some of the mistakes would not have been made by Filipino acting for themselves.

"The Filipinos have shown that they are amply capable of taking over and assimilating the beneficial ideas of western nations adapting them to their own use, fitting them to the needs of their peculiar situation and drawing intellectual sustenance therefore. This has been the history of successful civilization everywhere. It is not progress but just the reverse if a nation is compelled to confine itself to imitation of another and if it be debarred from selecting useful elements of civilization, education, social custom and government wherever it can find them throughout the world."

ing between Taggart and Senator Kern is none too friendly, it is being predicted that they will work together in the coming campaign, in which Kern will be a candidate for re-election. Kern never has wandered far from the organization corral, although some of his statements have given the rank and file an impression to the contrary.

That the Taggart organization will not have a candidate against Kern is also the understanding at this time. As matters stand the Senator is left free to work for reorganization of the party along lines that will give representatives of the various actions a chance to be heard. It is reported that he proposes to devote himself for the next year to bringing about a better feeling among the rival leaders and to showing the business men that the Wilson policies have not wrought injury to the country.

The fact that none of the leaders of the organization came to the relief of Mayor Donn M. Roberts, of Terre Haute, when he was trying to give bond to keep from going to prison pending the decision in the appeal in his case, is taken by many to mean that the Taggart contingent will offer no opposition to the cleanup in Vigo County, and that the Democratic leaders generally are glad to get rid of Roberts and his gang.

That the party organization could have come across with a bond sufficient for Roberts and some of his associates is conceded, but it turned them down when help was needed most. It is being said also that the Democratic leaders were afraid to fly in the face of public sentiment on account of the persistent efforts of Bryan to inject the temperance issue into politics in a paramount manner. The Democrats have won in Indiana whenever they had the liberal element with them. Many of the leaders are afraid that Bryan will drive the liberals away if he goes much further in his program to have the party take a stand in behalf of prohibition.

Recently it was reported that Kern expects to play up the temperance issue along with Bryan, but there was no ground for it. To an Eastern paper which is asking prominent Democrats throughout the country whether they believe prohibition will be inserted in the national platform in 1916 Taggart has sent a reply expressing a view to the contrary, but adding that he has no idea what will happen in 1920.

For the present at least the Democratic leaders in Indiana seem to be somewhat more disposed to bury the hatchet and work together in hope of presenting a solid front in 1916.

ILLEGAL SALE OF LIQUOR CHARGED

Paul H. McConnell, Proprietor of Court House Drug Store, Arrested on Two Affidavits.

FILED BY CHIEF OF POLICE

Alleged he Sold Whiskey to Two Men in Quantities of Less Than One Quart contrary to Law.

Paul H. McConnell, proprietor of the Court House drug store, was arrested today on two charges alleging the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor. The affidavits were filed in the circuit court by Prosecutor Stevens and the arrest was made by Sheriff Cavitt. McConnell was released on bond in the sum of $1,500, or $750 in each case.

One affidavit charges that he sold H. G. Haynes one quart of whiskey for the sum of $1.25 on or about February 19, 1915. It is alleged that he sold Haynes whiskey in less quantities than five gallons contrary to the laws of the state of Indiana. Both affidavits are signed by Chief of Police Rosencrance.

The other affidavit charges McConnell with selling one quart of whiskey to Stanley R. Wilson. The charge is similar to the first one and it is alleged that Wilson paid McConnell $1.25 for the quart.

When seen this afternoon Mr. McConnell would not comment on the cases and refused to make any statement. He did not remember the alleged sale, but stated that if a sale was made the parties signed the necessary paper stating that they desired it for medicinal purposes, as is provided by law.

It is understood that Haynes is a traveling man, living in Muncie. Prosecutor Stevens would make no statement other than he believed he had a case against the druggist. Stoney Wilson recently moved here from Newark, Ohio, and is connected in the bond and security business with A. C. Brown. In the affidavit in which McConnell is alleged to have sold Wilson the whiskey, the offense is alleged to have been committed on or about March 16.

WILL EARN $10,000,000

Combined Profits of Bucket Shops of Country Estimated.

New York, April 29.—Ten million dollars is what the bucket shops in the United States will make this year if they continue at the present rate. This estimate is based on an investigation by a special committee of the New York stock exchange which gave the facts to the United Press today. Over $100,000 has been spent by the exchange in collecting information about bucket shop operations in the last few years. Last year the profits of the bucket shops totaled over $7,000,000. This represents more than the combined profits of the eleven hundred members of the New York stock exchange for 1914.

COSTS TO RIDE FAST.
(By United Press.)
Indianapolis, Ind., April 29.—Ray East, a young blood of Anderson, is earning one dollar a day in the Marion county work house and unless he pays the fine and costs placed against him in court today for speeding his auto down Washington street, he will earn $34 at the work house. East was making forty-six miles an hour on a busy street. He offered no explanation.

MANY AUTOMOBILES ARE EXPECTED TO GO

Large Crowd is Anticipated For the Dixie Booster Trip to Brookville Tomorrow.

SEVERAL PLANNING TO GO

At least a half dozen automobiles will go to Brookville tomorrow for the Dixie highway booster meeting because that many have been promised definitely, and if the weather is good, it is expected that a dozen or eighteen machines will be lined up for the trip. A great amount of interest is being displayed in the agitation to get Rushville on the proposed road to be run from Chicago to Miami, Florida, and business men and others are discussing it generally now.

Many automobile owners were uncertain today whether it would be possible for them to go tomorrow, but it is believed by those who have been interviewing prospective men to make the trip that most of them will find it possible to get away at the last moment and go to Brookville.

The party will leave from the corner of Main and Second streets at eleven-thirty o'clock and will go by the short route to Brookville through New Salem, Andersonville and Laurel, the route the road would follow should it come through here.

INVITATION TO G.O.P. LOVE FEAST

Decatur County Chairman Urges Rush County Republicans to Attend Meeting at Greensburg.

FOURTH DISTRICT GATHERING

A. L. Riggs, chairman of the Republican central committee, has received a letter from Bert Morgan, Decatur county chairman, inviting Rush county Republicans to the fourth district Republican love feast which will be held in Greensburg on May 14. Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, will be one of the principal speakers. It is very probable that James E. Watson of this city will also speak. A banquet will be served at six-thirty o'clock in the evening.

The Decatur county chairman asked that he be informed as soon as possible of how many may be expected to go from here. Other Greensburg persons have written here suggesting that a special train be obtained, and it is not improbable that something of that sort might be tried.

NAMES MEMBERS OF COMMISSION

Governor Ralston Today Announces Selection of Five Men to Study Taxation Problems.

CREATED BY RECENT LAW

Commissioners Are All Men Who Have Studied Question—to Serve Without Compensation.

(U. S. Staff Correspondent.)

Indianapolis, April 29.—Governor Samuel M. Ralston today named the five members of the Commission on Taxation provided for by the recent legislature to investigate the problem of taxation in Indiana and consider what changes are necessary in the constitution and laws of the state to make them into a just and equitable system.

The members named are:

William A. Rawles, Progressive of Bloomington; professor of economics in Indiana University.

Fred Sims, Republican of Frankfort and Indianapolis; former secretary of state and state tax commissioner.

Jacob P Dunn, Democrat of Indianapolis; city controller of Indianapolis.

Win. L. Elder, Democrat of Indianapolis; real estate man.

Thomas D. Brookshire, Democrat of Roachdale, "farmer."

All of the members of the new commission have been interested in tax reform for Indiana for a number of years. Professor Fawls is a student of political science and economics. He has written a great deal on the subject of taxation. His book on "Centralizing Tendencies in the Administration of Indiana" is considered authoritative.

Mr. Sims was appointed secretary of state by Governor Lanly to fill a vacancy. Later he became a member of the state tax commission, which position he resigned to become chairman of the Republican state committee. Mr. Elder has been active in real estate circles. He is one of the directing forces of the State Real Estate Exchange and the Indianapolis Real Estate Board. Mr. Brookshire is a member of the committee appointed by the Tax Conference. He represents the agricultural element. Mr. Dunn has written a history of Indiana; was formerly editor of the Sentinel here and later edited a Denver paper. He has written several articles on taxation.

The commission will serve without compensation, but is allowed expenses. An appropriation of $5,000 is allowed with which to employ a tax expert and defray necessary expenses. The commission is authorized to engage a secretary. Sections 2, 3 and 4 of the act creating the commission are quoted:

"Section 2. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation, but shall be allowed their necessary traveling and hotel expenses while attending to the business of the commission to be paid on warrants approved by the chairman of the commission. The commission shall organize within thirty (30) days after their appointment by electing a chairman. The commission may appoint a secretary. The commission shall employ an expert on taxation and shall fix his compensation. All necessary expenses of the secretary and taxation expert in connection with the business of the commission shall be allowed and paid in the same manner as prescribed for the payment of expenses of the commission.

"Section 3. The commission shall investigate the problem of taxation in Indiana, and shall consider what

PUTS QUESTION TO COMMISSION

Petition is Filed Today With State Body Raising Point Concerning Right of City

TO CHARGE FOR WATER METER

Request of Ten Water Patrons Is Sustained, City Will Have to Refund All Such Money

The right of the City of Rushville to charge for installing water meters, and also of compelling the consumer to make the deposit before getting the meter, is questioned in a petition filed today with the Public Service Commission. The petition is filed in connection with the petition of the city asking for an increase in rates.

The petition was drawn up by F. T. Loftus and is signed by ten water patrons in the city that have refused to make the deposit for the meter or pay for the labor of installing them. It has been expected that someone would bring this question before the Public Service Commission and demand a hearing before the commission passed on the rate increase asked for by the city.

In the petition it is pointed out that the city is insisting that all users of city water install a meter at their own expense and that a time limit has been placed as May 1, or the city will discontinue their service. According to the petitioners this regulation of compelling the users of water, or the property owners, to put up a deposit and pay for the work of installing the meters is one of the things the City of Rushville asks the commission to approve in the original petition for a rate increase.

The petition sets out that the city has no right to do this thing and that the city, if allowed to do this, charges an excessive and unreasonable rate and that it ought not be approved. The commission is asked to investigate and the petitioners ask for a chance to be heard on this matter before passing on the rate increase asked for by the city.

If the Public Service Commission sustains the petition filed by Mr. Loftus the city will be compelled to refund all the money collected from water meters and for the money paid in labor for placing the meters. The authority of the city to make this charge is questioned and the filing of the petition makes the rate increase asked for by the city more doubtful than ever, it is stated. According to an order of the council all consumers were to have placed the meters in or made their deposits on or before May 1 or the water would be shut off. Mr. Loftus received such notice from the city and this is made an exhibit in the petition with the Public Service Commission.

Many people have contended that the city had no legal right to collect for water meters and if this is true it would also be true in the case of electric meters. The outcome of the case will be watched with interest.

The funeral services of David H. Bundy, age 61, a native of this county, who died at his home in Jackson township, Hancock county, were held at Nameless Creek church this afternoon at two o'clock. Mr. Bundy spent the greater part of his life in Hancock county. He is survived by a widow and two children.

A marriage license was issued late yesterday afternoon to William L. McWhorter of Connersville and Mandie Smiley, of this city.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

(By United Press.)

New York, Apr. 29.—In these High Cost of Living days, Miss Annie S. Peck not only manages to keep her expenses for food down to twenty-five cents a day, but climbs mountains for diversion, on the thirty diet. Fruit, cereals and coffee form her breakfast. Milk chocolate, a banana or a dish of oatmeal with raisins in it, she finds satisfying and nutritious for luncheon.

GEORGE IS BUSY GRADING PAPERS

Not Known by County Superintendent Yet How Many Eighth Year Graduates There Will be

LAW ON GRADING CHANGED

County Superintendent C. M. George is busy grading the examination papers of the eighth grade pupils. So far he has completed grading six townships, but the exact number of township graduates will not be known for some time. It was necessary to grade the papers of the Washington township pupils first as their commencement is next Wednesday in connection with the high school commencement at Raleigh. The Washington township pupils will not participate in the annual educational day exercises here this year because of this.

Superintendent George has received a letter from the state superintendent of public instruction calling attention to the changes in the law regarding the grading of papers. One of the principal changes in the law is that applicants for a license to teach in the high school and special branches shall have their papers graded by the state superintendent.

SYMPATHIZERS OF GERMANY BLAMED

Two Large Bridges at Vancouver, B. C. Damaged by Fire Today, One to Extent of $300,000.

ACT OF GOVERNMENT, CAUSE

(By United Press.)

Vancouver, B. C., April 29.—The great Connaught bridge was partially destroyed today with loss estimated at $300,000 by a fire which officials say was started by German sympathizers to avenge an act of the government, which has determined to place all alien enemies in detention camps until the war is over. The Granville bridge was afire at the same time, but was soon under control. The bridges were erected at a cost of one million dollars.

They are the main arteries of railroad traffic southward and connect the business and residence sections of Vancouver.

Following the recent slaughter of Canadians in the allied armies fighting in Belgium, the Vancouver Germans held a big celebration in a suburb. This was Tuesday night. This determined the government to intern all citizens of countries at war with the allies.

High officials believe the attempted destruction of the bridges was a part of the plot to burn the entire city. Both fires started in the pavement.

SCHMALZEL WINS A CLOSE VICTORY

High School Junior Will Represent High School in Annual Oratorical Contest Here May 8.

HAS MARGIN OF TWO POINTS

Ralph Hackleman Finishes Second and Gladys Wallace Third.—Two Ties on Points.

Harry Schmalzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Schmalzel, a junior in the Rushville high school, last night won the right to represent the school in the annual oratorical of the Central Indiana High School League, here May 8. He was placed first by the judges in the final preliminary over six other contestants.

The winner's subject was "The Power Conviction." Ralph Hackleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hackleman, was second, and Miss Gladys Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wallace, finished third. The former's subject was "Inglorious Peace" and the latter's "Peace and War."

Harry Schmalzel spoke with a vim and determination that brooked no defeat. He put spirit in his words and made them convincing. He seemed to sense the message of his oration and tried to make the audience feel as he did. The winner so truly interpreted his oration that he seemed to be the author.

It was a great victory because the right to represent the high school was more hotly contested this year than ever before. Interest that was aroused may best be understood when it is considered that there were fifteen contestants at the beginning of the race. Two preliminary events were necessary. Three were only seven left when the final started last night.

Considerable credit is given to Earl Marlett, who coached all of the entrants. His enthusiasm endowed the contest with more spirit than ever before, he imparted his interest to the high school pupils. All of the high school students who contested for the honor did well.

The closeness of the event last night is revealed by the fact that there were two tied for third place and two tied for fourth place making it necessary to pick the one for the place by per cent. Even when the per cent. was figured, there was only two per cent difference between the contenders for each position.

The judges were J. B. Carr of Indianapolis, Everett Letts of Manual Training high school, Indianapolis,

Carnegie And Advertising

Testifying as to his benefactions and their purpose, Andrew Carnegie said:

"Why was Lazarus a beggar? Because he did not advertise. I believe in advertising."

Carnegie's present day advertising is largely to write himself down as a "wholesome, helpful citizen."

And in degree that is what every advertiser does. The whole keynote of advertising is service.

It does not pay unless it strikes the service note.

Read the advertising in today's Republican for the names of men who are doing things.

Mrs. Mindwell Crampton Wilson of the Carroll County Times-Citizen, one of the leading newspaper women of the state responded in behalf of the visiting editors.

One of the first acts of the conference was to appoint committees to work on the plan as a state association for newspapermen not based on sections or polities. Chester A. McCormick of North Judson, member of last General Assembly presided at the morning session. At noon, the editors and their wives were dined at a luncheon held by the university. Richard Waldo of the New York Tribune was the principal speaker this afternoon. At the close of the afternoon session the visitors were taken on an auto ride about the city by the Bloomington Chamber of Commerce.

FOR RUNNING AUTO WITHOUT REAR LIGHT

Francis Knecht is Placed on Trial Before Jury in Police Court This Afternoon.

SWEET TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Francis Knecht was being tried before a jury in police court this afternoon on a charge of operating an automobile at night without having the rear light burning. The affidavit was filed by Milton Wainscott, who alleged that Knecht was running his auto at night with a dim light in front, not visible at a distance of 200 feet and having no rear light. The offense is said to have occurred on April 22. After the jury had been secured and Prosecutor Stevens had made his opening statement an adjournment of twenty minutes was taken until the officers could locate Jimmy Adams, one of the chief witnesses for the state. It was stated that Adams went fishing and might not be back for the trial.

Because of the Knecht trial the trial of Charles Sweet, charged with petit larceny, in connection with the taking of some chickens from the home of Charles Foster, east of the city, was postponed.

HOOSIER HISTORY

Probably the most widely known technical university in the middle-west is Purdue University at Lafayette. The Technical branch of the state's educational plan was established in 1865 in pursuant of certain provisions of Congress for the maintenance of schools of agriculture and mechanic arts. John Purdue, a public spirited citizen of Indiana, with the assistance of others, gave the tract of land which is the site of the school. The university has thorough courses in mechanical and electrical engineering, chemistry and mechanic arts. Large laboratories and libraries are in possession of the school.

Newspaper Charity

"Space and copies of his paper go to make up the newspaper man's entire stock in trade," says the Fourth Estate in an editorial entitled, "Objects of Charity." "These two are all that he has to offer for sale to the public, and no one has ever yet given any sort of satisfactory reason why he should ever be asked by anyone to donate them."

"One thing newspaper men will never be able to understand is why any person will walk into a newspaper office and make himself or herself an object of charity and insist upon what they would disdain to ask for any other shop or place of business in the town. The principle

"ADVERTISING SPACE IN THE NEWSPAPER IS FOR SALE, NOT TO GIVE AWAY. IT HAS A CERTAIN INTRINSIC VALUE IN ITSELF THAT MAKES IT WORTH MONEY. COPIES OF THE NEWSPAPER ARE FOR SALE, NOT TO GIVE AWAY. IF THEY ARE WORTH HAVING, THEY ARE WORTH THE EXCEEDINGLY SMALL PRICE ASKED FOR THEM."

"THE PUBLIC, OR AT LEAST A LARGE PORTION OF IT, HAS SOME VERY ERRONEOUS IDEAS ABOUT THESE MATTERS, AND IT IS BUT JUST TO NEWSPAPER FOLKS THAT THESE IDEAS BE CORRECTED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE SAME BUSINESS PRINCIPLES THAT PREVAILS IN ALL OTHER BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS."

"IN THE VAST MAJORITY OF CASES, THIS GENEROUS CHARITY ON THE PART OF THE NEWSPAPERS IS BLISSFULLY TAKEN FOR GRANTED, AND THE PAPER'S LIBERALITY ABUSED. THAT WHICH IS PURELY A FAVOR IS ACCEPTED AS A MATTER OF COURSE AND WHAT SHOULD BE REQUESTS ARE CONSIDERED AS DEMANDS."

and E. L. Rickert, superintendent of the Connersville public schools. An analysis of the judges' decision shows that the winner had six points, Ralph Hackelman, eight points, and Gladys Wallace twelve points.

J. B. Carr gave to the winner second position and a per cent of 881. Everett Letts gave him third place and 85 per cent, and E. L. Rickert placed him first, with a per cent. of 84. Ralph Hackelman won a second, but the fact that E. L. Rickert put him down to fifth place reduced his points considerably.

Carr gave him first and Letts second. Gladys Wallace was given to thirds and her other position was sixth, making a difference of four points between her and second place.

Miss Helen Scott sang a solo after the third oration. Other contestants and their subjects were:

"John Sobieski, Lucian Anderson, 'The Hero of Compromise,' Merle Maupin, 'Affairs in Cuba,' William Sexton and 'Savonarola,' James Laughlin.

The Arlington high school, which closed the year 1914-1915 last night by holding its annual commencement exercises, has to its credit an achievement which no other high school in the county can claim. For three years the graduating class has been publishing an annual, entitled "The Rambler," which is not only a credit to the school but to the county.

"The Rambler" is a book of seventy-two pages, all filled with the most creditable material, including some local art, contributed by Miss Elizabeth Cole, in charge of the music and art department in the high school and Arthur Conway.

The "Rambler" staff is made up of the following persons: Nellie Woods, editor-in-chief; Mary Woods, assistant editor; Beatrice Bagley, assistant editor, and Omar McKibben, business manager and the following associate editors: Mary Woods, social; Henry Collins, athletic; Elizabeth Cole, art; Arthur Conway, arr; Beatrice Bagley, alumni, and Clark Offutt, alumni.

The annuals contain pictures of the high school building, faculty and members of the graduating class. John Geraghty of this city is principal of the high school. Last year was his first at Arlington, when he held the position of assistant principal. Miss Erema Wilk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Wilk of this city is the assistant principal. Miss Elizabeth Cole of Morristown is at head of the art and music department of the high school.

The "Foreword" from the senior class reads as follows: "We offer this volume as the result of our efforts to produce an Annual in accordance with the custom of the senior class of this high school. We know it is impossible to please all of you with all of it, or some of you with any of it. We reluctantly give it to public criticism as it is almost a part of us. We trust you will receive it kindly, the record of our last high school year."

The annual is composed of an editorial department, faculty, a tribute to "A. H. S." by Principal John Geraghty, a department for the senior class including class history, prophecies, the class will and the class poem; departments for the other three classes, all of which contain group pictures of the classes. One of the bright spots in "The Rambler" is a tribute "To The Five Little Girls," referring to the graduating class, by J. L. Shueck for many years at the head of Arlington high school. There is also a contribution by Miss Cole and Miss Wilk and a poem on "Our Janitor".

Then there are a number of other interesting departments, including those devoted to athletics (which contains a picture of the basketball team) alumni, social notes, school calendar, "A New Fable in Slang" by Henry Collins, "A New Year's Resolution" by Mary Northam, "Love Vs. Gossip" by Daniel Merrill, "Hallow'en" by the same author, "A Hallow'en Story" by Wallace Brown, "The conversion of Murray" by Leon Stanley, and last but not by any means the least comes the portion devoted to jokes.

The five members of the graduating class are Beatrice Bagley, Mary Woods, Nellie Woods, Elizabeth Nelson and Clara Sunman.

FRAUD CHARGED IN DAMAGE SUIT

E. A. Frazee Says in Case on Trial
He Was Induced by Defendant
to go to Florida

ENTIRELY AT ITS EXPENSE

One Deposition Introduced by Plaintiff Secured After Walk of 39 Miles to Find Squire

Newcastle, Ind., April 29.—The suit for $6,000 damages filed by Edward A. Frazee of Rush county against the National Land Company of Chicago and Florida, a corporation dealing in the sale of Florida land which was brought here on a change of venue from Rush county and which is on trial in the Henry circuit court before Judge Gause and a jury is one of the most interesting cases ever on trial in this county. Frazee charges that he paid the defendant company $4,800 for 160 acres of land in DeSoto county, Florida and that the land was not as represented. He charges fraud and misrepresentation.

Frazee states that in January 1913 he and his son Edward were making arrangements to take a pleasure trip to Florida and that the land company through its agent learned that they were going and induced them to go as the guests of the company, offering as a special inducement cheap fare and the best of accommodations if they would go on one of the company's excursions.

The plaintiff states that he accepted the invitation and went to Florida and states that the land company represented that it was the owner of 42,000 acres of land in DeSoto county and that one member of the company alone had paid down $150,000 on the purchase price. Frazee asserts that the company in order that it might cheat and defraud him represented that a railroad was being constructed across the open and unsettled prairie between Whittier, Fla. and Bassenger, Fla., and that the terminus of the railroad would be within one mile of the land it sold to the plaintiff.

Frazee further alleges that the defendant company fraudulently represented that one boat was already running up and down the Kissimmee river between Bassenger and Kissimmee, Fla., and that another would soon be running. It is charged by Frazee that the one boat ceased to operate and that a rival boat never did start on its first trip.

As to the land he purchased the Rush county man states it was represented to him as being good sugar cane land; that it was no more difficult to raise sugar cane than to raise corn, wheat or oats in Indiana; that the land was fine for ecley and cranberries; that it was the finest land in Florida for oranges, grapefruit and other citrus fruits; that three crops could be raised annually on the land; that a crop of corn, then potatoes and finally a crop of cabbage and tomatoes had been raised in one year on the same patch of ground.

Frazee states that when he purchased the land, it was represented to him that he was purchasing an orange grove with the other land but asserts that the orange grove was not on the property he purchased.

Frazee is attempting to prove that the National Land Company did not even own the property but that in truth it merely held an option on the property; that the railroad mentioned to him has never been completed and was not even a possibility; that the one boat running between Bassenger and Kissimmee has ceased to run; that even if crops could be raised there is no way garden, orchard or farm products could be marketed; that the representations concerning the raising of sugar cane, ecley, cranberries, garden products and citrus fruits were false because the land is so poor and sterile as to be absolutely worthless and that corn can only be obtained from shipping from the northern states; that the defendant company used a fraudulent map in showing the location of the farm land; that at times two thirds of the land is under water that the drainage is defective; that the soil is composed largely of sand and is so poor and sterile as to be of no value for the raising of farm products and that he is now convinced of the falsity of each and every one of the company's representations.

Because of the agitation throughout the country regarding "fake" land schemes and especially Florida land, the case is attracting unusual attention here. Some of the jurymen themselves have had Florida land dealings and the testimony given in the case is unusual. Depositions gathered from many sections in Florida add to the interest. One deposition introduced by the plaintiff was secured after a walk of 39 miles to find a justice of peace and then the evidence was taken with the parties sitting on the ground and the "Squire" sitting majestically on a stump. The case will probably be finished this week.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and thick with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussel mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle.

It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft, lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

CAR OF THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Ask the Engineer

We hope you have in your acquaintance a competent engineer.

We would like you to get his opinion of the Hupmobile.

Engineers constitute a little world of and unto themselves. They are keen critics, but generous ones, when they encounter good work. And these sharpest of observers say the Hupmobile is good.

In Detroit—where there are many automobile engineers—one hears the highest praise of the Hupmobile.

It would be too much to say that there is not a dissenting voice regarding the Hupmobile among Detroit engineers.

But it would be hard to find one who holds an unfavorable view.

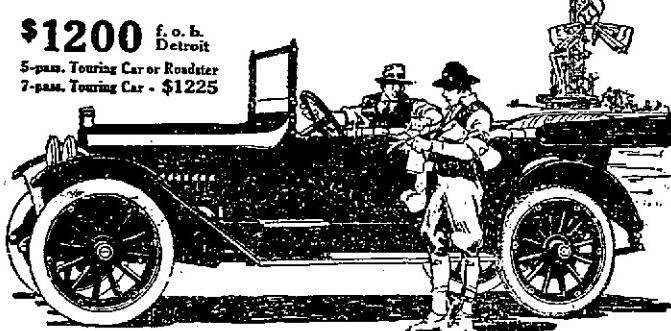

By common consent they have settled on the Hupmobile as one car they can unite in commending.

Now this is not mere sentiment or friendliness. Reputable engineers will not barter away their professional standing by unmerited praise.

When they approve of the Hupmobile—and especially of its splendid small bore, long stroke motor—that approval means something. It is an endorsement founded on extraordinary experience and knowledge.

It is a source of pride to us—and a recommendation you can not afford to overlook. Take the engineer's expert opinion along with all the other good things that you hear about the Hupmobile. Let us prove the Hupmobile in a quality test.

OPENS AT EVANSVILLE TODAY

Prof. R. L. Sackett Discusses Road
Surface Now in Use—Other
Addresses Made

(Written for United Press.)

Evansville, Ind., April 29.—The first district road school held at Evansville under the auspices of Purdue University opened this morning with a large attendance of road officials and farmers from the various counties of southern Indiana.

The program of the forenoon consisted of an automobile tour over fifty miles of typical roads in Vanderburgh County. This trip gave the road officials and farmers an opportunity to study brick, concrete stone gravel and dirt roads. The road superintendent of Vanderburgh County with Prof. Martin of Purdue and Mr. J. H. Dodge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture were in charge of the party and took time to point out the strong and weak points of the various roads. Suggestions were also made for repair and upkeep of roads and the methods that might be adopted to secure the best results.

The afternoon program was held in the auditorium of the Evansville high school. The opening talk was made by Prof. R. L. Sackett of the School of Civil Engineering of Purdue University, on "Modern Road Surfaces." Prof. Sackett opened his talk with a statement of the relation of Purdue University to the public works of the state. He stated that Purdue had no desire to interfere with any of the public officials of the state nor to supplant them in any of their authority. The University feels however, that the members of its faculty can often be of very much assistance. With this in mind there has been established the Department of Highway Engineering to give advice on the road problems of Indiana.

Prof. Sackett then took up development of the road surfaces now in use. He considered the kind of traffic which was carried by the roads sometime ago, contrasted with what they must carry now. Each of the various types of road surface was described and their advantages and disadvantages discussed. It was very clearly shown that the cheapest pavement is not always the best when all things are considered. Prof. Sackett also placed before the road school the fact that no one road surface will be satisfactory under all conditions. All of the local conditions should be considered before a road surface is selected.

The subject of "Maintenance of Earth and Gravel Roads" was then taken up by Prof. C. E. Martin of the Highway Department of Purdue. Prof. Martin, in his talk supplemented with demonstration materials, took up the fundamental operations necessary for proper maintenance of earth and gravel roads.

Drainage is of the most importance. No road will keep in good shape unless the water can be kept off of it. The road must be crowned and the water led to the ditches. The ditches must be kept clean and must lead to some outlet. In some soils tile drains will be necessary.

The cheapest and best tool to maintain an earth or gravel road is the road drag. A full sized road drag was used to demonstrate the proper method of using the drag. The members of the road school were warned however that the drag could be abused and that its use on a road which was not properly graded up would result in failure.

The various methods of placing gravel were discussed and their good points and bad points stated.

The use of various tools for road maintenance was described in full.

The concluding number on the program for the afternoon was a round table on road materials. During the past year Purdue University has tested many samples of road materials. A large number of these samples were shown together with the results of the tests.

Samples of road materials brought in by the various road officials were then examined and discussed. It is felt that this part of the program was one of the most interesting and helpful since the question of material is now before every road official. The program for Friday will include talks on "Dust Prevention," "Sand Clay Roads," "Maintenance of Macadam Roads," and other miscellaneous subjects to be brought up by those in attendance.

COMPLEXION OF WART CHANGING

Spring Comes in War Zone and Grass

Getting Greener in no Man's Land Between Trenches.

PLANTING GOES FORWARD

Tillers of Soil Work Three and Four

Miles Within the Range of the Shell Fire.

The following is the fourth of the stories in the Shepherd series, the third of which appeared yesterday. William G. Shepherd, United Press staff correspondent is the only American, representing an individual American press organization, now at the British front under official credentials. A fifth story will appear tomorrow.

By William G. Shepherd.

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

With the British Army in Northern France, April 17, (By mail to N. Y.)

Spring has come.

The complexion of war is changing.

The flying men come down with the news that everyday the grass is getting greener in the No Man's Land between the trenches; no one dares to go out there to tramp it down.

Trees that are landmarks with their bare branches in the winter time are changing shape as their buds become leaves and the officers themselves daily becoming more and more strangers to the landscape.

Ploughing in France has apparently been as extensive as ever before. In the fields old men and boys plough while women do the sowing. Unploughed fields are rarely seen. Ploughing and planting is going on up to within a mile of the English trenches and the French farms are scenes of agricultural activity three and four miles within the zone of shell fire.

Around the English headquarters all of the soil is in erop and General French has arranged that none of his army shall encroach in any way on farm land except under the most urgent necessity. To trample the ploughed land is an offense which must be explained at the English headquarters to the satisfaction of the commander in chief. The cavalry, including the Indians, find a small piece of meadow here and there on which they exercise their horses, but the French farmer is to be paid for any damage that may be done to his crops of hay.

There is no place within miles of headquarters where space can be found for collecting large forces of men for review purposes. General French recently, reviewing part of the forces which had participated in the battle of Neuve Chapelle traveled to several different spots within a radius of a dozen miles where the men were drawn up in comparatively small bodies.

"I can ride around and meet them" he said. "I'd rather do that than spoil a wheat crop on some big farm."

In the vicinity of headquarters it looks as if agriculture was crowding the army out of the neighborhood. It is only when one approaches the lines that the army begins to get the upper hand in the curious conflict between the aged French farmer and the rifle bearing English soldier.

STOPPED RUSH- VILLE MAN'S BACKACHE

He Tells of Remarkable Results From New, Scientific Remedy.

Mr. Chase Litterell of 830 North Arthur street, Rushville, Ind., says: "Some time ago I noticed severe pains across the small of my back. My kidneys were off in action and the Kidney secretions were highly colored. I suffered continually with the backache. At night it was impossible for me to control my kidneys and I would have to get up very often. For these ills I got a box of Lloyd's Kidney & Rheumatism Tablets, the new scientific prescription. The results were fine. I was surprised that any medicine would give such quick relief. Lloyd's relieved me instantly and I have not had a return of the trouble. I am sure that others would find quick relief in Lloyd's. I did."

Together they carried the sleeping girl out of the room into a larger apartment. A single electric light was burning on the top of a square mirror fixed upon an easel. Towards them they carried the girl and laid her in an easy chair almost opposite to it.

"The battery is just on the left," Laura whispered.

Quest nodded.

"Give me the band."

She turned away for a moment and disappeared in the shadows. When she returned, she carried a curved band of flexible steel. Quest took it from her, attached it by means of a coil of wire to the battery, and with firm, soft fingers slipped it on to Lenora's forehead. Then he stepped back.

"She's a subject, Laura—I'm sure of it! Now for our great experiment!" They watched Lenora intently.

"Lenora," Quest said, slowly and firmly, "your mind is full of one subject. You see your mistress in her chair by the fireside. She is toying with her diamonds. Look again. She lies there dead! Who was it entered the room, Lenora? Look! Look! Gaze into that mirror. What do you see there?"

The girl's eyes had opened. They were fixed now upon the mirror—distracted, full of unholy things.

"Try harder, Lenora," he muttered, his own breath laboring. "It is there in your brain! Look!"

For a single second the smooth surface of the mirror was obscured. A room crept dimly like a picture into being, a fire upon the hearth, a girl leaning back in her chair. A door in the background opened. A man stole out. He crept nearer to the girl—his eyes fixed upon the diamonds, a thin, silken cord twisted round his wrist. Suddenly she saw him—too late! His hand was upon her lips, his face seemed to start almost from the mirror—then blackness . . .

Lenora opened her eyes. She was still in the easy-chair before the fire.

"Mr. Quest!" she faltered.

He looked up from some letters which he had been studying.

"I am so sorry," he said politely. "I really had forgotten that you were nervous fears of any sort, yet, having advanced couple of yards along the hallway of the house which he had just entered without difficulty, he came to a standstill, oppressed with the sense of impending danger.

"Anyone here?" he asked, raising his voice.

There was no direct response, yet from somewhere upstairs he heard the half-smothered cry of a woman. He gripped his revolver in his fingers. He took a quick step forward. The floor gave way beneath him. He was falling into blackness . . .

The fall itself was scarcely a dozen feet. He picked himself up, his shoulder bruised, his head swimming a trifle. Suddenly a gleam of light shone down. A trap-door above his head was slid a few inches back. The flare of an electric torch shone upon his face, a man's voice addressed him.

"Not the great Sanford Quest? This surely cannot be the greatest detective in the world walking so easily into the spider's web!"

"Any chance of getting out?" Quest asked laconically.

"None!" was the bitter reply. "You've done enough mischief. You're there to rot!"

"Why this animus against me, my friend Macdougal?" Quest demanded. "You and I have never come up against one another before. I didn't like the life you led in New York ten years ago, or your friends, but you've suffered nothing through me."

"If I let you go," once more came the man's voice, "I know very well in what chair I shall be sitting before a month has passed. I am James Macdougal, Mr. Sanford Quest, and I have got the Ashleigh diamonds, and I have settled an old grudge, if not of my own, of one greater than you. That's all. A pleasant night to you!"

The door went down with a bang.

"A perfect oublieette," he remarked to himself, as he held a match over his head a moment or two later, "built for the purpose. It must be the house we failed to find which Bill Taylor used to keep before he was shot. Smooth brick walls, smooth brick floor, only exit twelve feet above one's head. Human means, apparently, are useless.

"Here?" the inspector repeated.

"Quest nodded.

"Our friend," he said, "is going to be mad enough to walk into hell even, when he finds out what he thinks has happened."

"It wasn't any of Jimmy's lot?" Sanford Quest shook his head.

"French," he said, "keep mum, but it was the elderly family retainer, Macdougal. I felt restless about him. He has lost the girl—he was married to her, by the bye—and the jewels. No fear of his slipping away, I shall have him here at the time I told you."

"You've a way of your own of doing these things, Mr. Quest," the inspector admitted grudgingly.

"Mostly lucky," Quest replied. "Take a cigar, and so long, inspector. They want me to talk to Chicago on another little piece of business."

It was a few minutes before midnight when Quest parted the curtains of a room on the ground floor of his house in Georgia square and looked out into the snow-white street. Then he turned around and addressed the figure lying as though asleep upon the sofa by the fire.

"Lenora," he said, "I am going out. Stay here, if you please, until I return."

He left the room. For a few moments there was a profound silence. Then a white face was pressed against the window. There was a crash of glass. A man covered with snow sprang into the apartment. He moved swiftly to the sofa, and something black and ugly swayed in his hand.

"So you've deceived me, have you?" he panted. "Handed over the jewels, chucked me, and given me the double cross! Anything to say?"

Macdougal leaned forward, his white face distorted with passion. The life-preserver bent and quivered behind him, cut the air with a swish and crashed full upon the head.

The man staggered back. The weapon fell from his fingers. For a moment he was paralyzed. There was no blood upon his hand, no cry silence inhuman, unnatural! He looked again. Then the lights flashed out all around him. There were two detectives at the doorway, their revolvers covering him—Sanford Quest, with Lenora in the background. In the sudden illumination Macdougal's horror turned almost to hysterical rage. He had wasted his fury upon a dummy!

"Take him, men," Quest ordered. "Hands up, Macdougal. Your number's up."

The handcuffs were upon him before he could move.

"What about the young woman?" the inspector asked.

Lenora stood in an attitude of despair, her head downcast. She had turned a little away from Macdougal. Her hands were outstretched. It was as though she were expecting the handcuffs.

"You can let her alone," Sanford Quest said quietly. "A wife cannot give evidence against her husband."

Quest slept for a couple of hours, had a bath and made a leisurely toilet.

At a quarter to nine he sat down to breakfast in his rooms.

"At nine o'clock," he told his servant, "a young lady will call. Bring her up."

The door was suddenly opened. Lenora walked in. Quest glanced in surprise at the clock.

"My fault!" he exclaimed. "We are slow. Good-morning, Miss Lenora!"

She came straight to the table. She laid a little packet upon the table. Quest opened it coolly. The Ashleigh diamonds flashed up at him. He led Lenora to a chair and rang a bell.

"Prepare a bedroom upstairs," he ordered. "Ask Miss Roche to come here. . . . Laura," he added, as his secretary entered, "will you look after this young lady?"

A few minutes later Inspector and besides, I need her. She is going to work for me."

Macdougal was already at the door, between the two detectives. He swung around. His voice was calm, almost clear—calm with concentration of hatred.

"You are a wonderful man, Mr. Sanford Quest," he said. "Make the most of your triumph. Your time is nearly up, there is one coming whose wit and cunning, science and skill are all-conquering. He will brush you away, Sanford Quest, like a fly. Wait a few weeks."

"You interest me," Quest murmured. "Tell me some more about this great master?"

"I shall tell you nothing," Macdougal replied. "You will hear nothing, you will know nothing. Suddenly you will find yourself opposed. You will struggle—and then the end. It is certain."

They led him away. Only Lenora remained, sobbing. Quest went up to her.

"You've had a rough time, Lenora," he said, with strange gentleness. "Perhaps the brighter days are coming."

World to Know French Women Are Not Mere Creatures of Pleasure

BY HENRY WOOD.

Paris, Apr. 9: (By mail to New York)—The world is to know at least that the French women of today is not a mere creature of "pleasure, of coquetry, and of perfidy."

This is the decision just taken by a committee composed of the leading women of France. Amongst its members are Madame Raymond Poincaré, wife of the president; Madame Alphonse Daudet, wife of the great writer; Madame René Viviani, wife of the Prime Minister; Madame Delcas, wife of the Minister of Foreign Affairs; Madame Camille Flammarion, wife of the great French astronomer; Madame Victor Augagneur, wife of the Minister of Marine; Madame Juliette Adam; the Marquise of Ganay; Countess Greffulhe, Duchess of Uzes and a dozen others whose names are equally prominent.

A world-wide crusade on behalf of the good reputation of the French women is to be begun at once. The world at large is to be taught that she is all that a woman should be, and especially the neutral nations in the present war to be taught to love and respect her. For the crusade is a direct outcome of the war.

With their husbands, brothers, fathers and sons dying in the trenches for "la patrie" the women of France declare that they have been stung to the quick by the impression spread abroad that they are unworthy of the men who are thus nobly dying for France. This impression they declare is nothing less than a part of the campaign which Germany has carried on the world over to the detriment of France. Especially they insist have the Germans sought every instill the ideas that the French woman of today is mere "being of lightness and decadence."

In support of these charges against the Germans, the women of the committee have elected a vast quantity of literature diffused they insist by Germany in all parts of the world. New agencies, subsidized newspapers and even private correspondence are a few of the means which they insist Germany has employed to this end.

A counter-organization, not to blacken the character of the Germans

Most Popular Wartime Diversion of Britshers Now Is Hero Worship

BY WILBUR S. FORREST

London, Apr. 14: (By mail to New York)—The most popular war time diversion of Britshers today is hero worship.

London shopkeepers are authority for statement that they can hardly keep up with the demand for engravures of Lord Kitchener, Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, General French and other popular idols of the present conflict.

From every shop window there beams on the populace the faces of these military heroes and it is estimated that before many moons few homes in Britain will be without the likeness of some of the men who are leading the history making legions on the sea and in the field.

Along with the demand for highly polished and well appearing pictures of England's war leaders, caricatures of German war notabilities including the Kaiser, Admiral Von Tirpitz, Sultan of Turkey and others are in demand.

"The best hero sellers are Lord Kitchener, and Sir John Jellicoe, but I am also selling hundreds of King Alberas, Sir John French, General Joffre and prince of Wales," said a Strand book stall proprietor today. "Included among the heavy purchasers are public houses and city offices while thousands of pictures have gone from this shop alone to private homes. As many as otherwise are ordered with expensive frames."

This shopkeeper declared he was "having a time of it" buying the pictures from the wholesale dealers who have recently been unable to get adequate supplies from the manufacturers. Another popular seller in London bookstalls is a recently issued poster of a British "tommy," pipe in mouth and rifle shoulderered inscribed "Come Along Boys." This poster is one of the many issued by but to make the world know and love the real character of the French woman, is what the committee plans. As yet it has not made public what will be its method of campaigning, but has established permanent headquarters and invited not only the women of France, but French women in every country in the world to join in the crusade.

The French authorities are having a great deal less difficulty in locating German spies than they are in finding small boys who persist in running away from home and joining the troops at the front. Recently the number who have gone to save "la patrie" has become so great, that special guards have been placed at all the depots to prevent their departure.

One of the latest to elude these and presumably to reach the front where he has not yet been located is 12-year-old Edmond Loret, who lived in the Rue de Flaubert at Meaux. He went to revenge himself on the "boches" for having wounded his brother. The note he left to his mother reads:

"Mamma: It is not worth while to try and find me as, I have gone to the front. Remember that a Frenchman must always die for France. I have gone to revenge Leon. Adieu."

M. Valery-Radot, son-in-law of Pasteur, has opened a hospital at Reuilly for soldiers rendered blind during the present war. The number of these is declared to be far greater than any one up to the present time has supposed.

Aside from hundreds of cases of blindness brought about through direct injury to the eyes, it has been found that even more cases develop in an indirect way. These come from fragments of bursting shells which strike the soldiers at the base of the spinal column. The injury to the nerves there brings about blindness. It is especially this of cases that M. Valery-Radot will undertake to provide for at his hospital. He already has 250 cases.

Those for whom a cure cannot be effected will be taught an occupation and positions found for them where they will be self-supporting.

the government to stimulate recruiting and its appearance immediately signalized its popularity.

Among the most popular postcard sellers are those printed in the catch-phrase language of the government recruiting office and pictures of officers and privates who have distinguished themselves on the field.

American tourists who have suffered the pangs of seasickness crossing the English channel between Calais and Dover may now take heart.

Travelers to France within the next few years will in all probability be able to take a railway train in London and remain in it, if they desire until they arrive in Paris.

Arthur Pell, member of Parliament and the most eminent authority in England on the subject of solving channel problem is authority for the statement that the European war has made imperative the building of a railway tunnel under the channel. He believes the project imperative and has issued the following statement:

"We can only take the results of the war as we have found them. The tunnel could have been used for the transport of our expeditionary army and stores which it could have carried with safety, and the delay and the expense of the channel would have been avoided. How many millions of pounds this would have saved we cannot calculate."

"The supporters of the tunnel may rest assured that on the termination of the war the matter will be pressed forward without delay and this is one of the great works to look forward to when peace is made. It will unite us with France by the ties of increased friendship and commerce will follow from increased facilities of communication."

The question has already been taken up in Parliament and now rests in the hands of the Committee of Imperial Defense.

Selling Is MORE than Trading Stock for Money!

Selling is part of the scheme of business. Most anyone can sell once, but selling so you can create permanent customers is selling successfully. That is why we carry the large stock of buggies we have on our sample floor for prospective customers or purchasers to make their selections from. They don't have to take something they don't want, as we carry every style of buggy that there is a demand for. Then after the customer has made his selection from our stock we tell him exactly what the buggy is and it has to be just as we represent it or we make it that way. The customer takes no chances. He is sure to get just what he pays for. ONE sale reduces itself to a confidence game unless the buyer is perfectly satisfied. Satisfaction sends a customer away with a smile that won't come off. That is why our buggy business has grown. We have found out how to hold customers after we get them and every satisfied customer is bound to bring a new customer sooner or later. Right now our stock of buggies is complete and if you are needing a buggy come in and make your selection. We have the style you want and we would be glad to have you for one of our satisfied customers. We know you will be glad when you give us your vehicle business, so do it now.

TENDENCY TO GET TOGETHER

Democratic Factions in Indiana See Necessity of Coalition if They Have Chance in 1916.

TAGGART AND KERN MAY JOIN

"Forward Lookers" Are Beginning to Look For the Way Back About This Time.

Robert G. Tucker, Indiana correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer, says that the "Forward-lookers" in Indiana Democracy are looking for the way back in now because the factions in the party in Hoosierdom know that if they have a ghost of a show in 1916, they will have to get together. He says in part concerning the "merger":

Fear of defeat in Indiana next year is causing many of the Democratic brethren to listen to reason. There are indications that a truce of some kind will be patched up between the machine and the anti-machine faction. The latter may be designated also as the Wilson-Bryan "forward-lookers," who pose as the only friends of the President and the Commoner. The existence of their organization is justified on the ground that it is required to save the President and the Commoner from humiliation at the hands of National Committeeman Taggart and his cohorts.

It seems to be dawning on some of the leaders of the two factions that neither can save the President and the rest of the ticket in Indiana from defeat next year unless there is a united party. As saviors of the President it is not regarded as likely that the noble band of "forward lookers" would get very far in a rough-and-tumble fight with the Republicans without the support of the Taggart contingent, which happens to be the largest part of the party.

There may be more running wild on the bases during the next few months by the overzealous "forward lookers," but they are an undercurrent now indicating very clearly that Senator John Worth Kern and his active lieutenants are about ready to call a halt on the flow of anti Taggart talk that some of their ardent followers have indulged in for the last two years.

What would happen to the President's candidacy for re-election in Indiana with the Taggart contingent opposed to it is too obvious to need analysis. There are men among the "forward lookers" who can see now that in order to save the President in this state there must be a strong working agreement between the rival elements.

It is declared that there is a disposition on the part of the regulars to bring about a better understanding with the "forward lookers." The presence of former Mayor John W. Holtzman of Indianapolis, and other staunch anti-Taggart men at the conference here a few days ago to arrange for an aggressive summer campaign to counteract the activity of the Republicans is taken to mean that the state organization has thrown down the bars to its opponents.

Holtzman was placed at the head of the Committee on Arrangements for the love feast here April 28, at which Secretary Redfield, of the Department of Commerce, is to speak. He has accepted the post and is doing whatever he can to arouse interest in the meeting. It is the understanding that in the district meetings that are to be held that the "forward lookers" will be invited to share the responsibility for arrangement of the program.

Whether the "forward lookers" will be satisfied with anything short of the retirement of Taggart as the leader of the organization remains to be seen. For a long time Taggart's close friends have said that he was anxious to retire. He offered his resignation two years ago as National Committeeman, but it was not accepted. His critics probably help to keep him in the game by their determination to drive him out.

Says Most Americans Have Wrong Views on the Philippine Question

BY BURTON K. STANDISH
(Written for United Press)

Washington, April 28.—In the opinion of Manuel L. Quezon, resident commissioner from the Philippines, most Americans approach the question of Philippine progress and readiness for self-government from the wrong standpoint, that is to say from the standpoint of American institutions and western habit of thought.

"The Filipinos are a people of Oriental habits and type of mind, resident in the Tropics and subject to their own conditions of life and industry," says the commissioner. "It seems to me that to expect them to emulate the United States in all particulars is a gross perversion of the teachings of human experience or any sound political philosophy."

Do not understand, however, that Dr. Quezon considers the Filipinos have failed of proving their capacity, even if judged by our standards. He does not. He will offer you the record of the Filipino legislature and cite the progress in government made since a larger measure of self-management was introduced by the present administration. By our own measuring stick, he asserts, the Filipino has proved himself to be of man's size, and he should be left free to work out his own destiny.

"Many of the conditions which exist today in the United States are not ideal, but they are the product of many years of labor and development. They are intended to meet the peculiar needs of a highly industrialized society with a structure totally different from any that is found in any Eastern country. I think the thoughtful student of race development will concede that it is far better that a nation should evolve its own type of culture and of government and should follow its own instincts in selecting a path toward the attainment of a higher civilization than that it should be made a slavish imitator of any other country or group of countries, however elevated may be the latter. Even if such a nation did not as well in the initial stages of self-government and it might do with foreign preceptors, nevertheless the slower and less perfect progress was the more solid and stable and therefore vastly to be preferred.

I question more seriously that any nation can successfully direct the course of development that must be followed by another. The education of the individual is most successful when it affords the best vehicle for self-expression; the education of the nation or the race proceeds most naturally as a matter of internal evolution. Mistakes may be made; when made they bring their own penalty. Now, as always, it is true that experience is the best teacher, and that only by endeavoring, aspiring and striving can a government attain to practical efficiency. That has been conspicuously the history of the Anglo-Saxon race. Magna Charta was not bestowed by some friendly conqueror, but was the product of long years of struggle and effort. American constitutional government was not the gift of Howe, Cornwallis or the King of England.

Are we mindful of the fact that the one priceless advantage of self-development is that it proceeds along the proper line. In accord with the tendencies, peculiarities and special abilities of the people; in other words that it is always a natural growth, while progress imposed from without may result in an unnatural type of evolution?

"Without being over critical, let me speak of this matter frankly. It is a fact that the work of the Americans in the Philippines has not been as free from error as the former officials of the Philippin government would have us believe. There have been mistakes—mistakes that were very costly to the Filipino tax-payers; there have been injustices and wrongs. Some things have been overdone and other things have been neglected. I do not, however, on that account underrate the value of the work as a whole and I gladly reiterate that considering all the circumstances the Americans have done marvels. I only wish to note the fact that some of the mistakes would not have been made by Filipino acting for themselves.

The Filipinos have shown that they are amply capable of taking over and assimilating the beneficial ideas of western nations adapting them to their own use, fitting them to the needs of their peculiar situation and drawing intellectual sustenance therefore. This has been the history of successful civilization everywhere. It is not progress but just the reverse if a nation is compelled to confine itself to imitation of another and if it be debarred from selecting useful elements of civilization, education, social custom and government wherever it can find them throughout the world."

in Indiana whenever they had the liberal element with them. Many of the leaders are afraid that Bryan will drive the liberals away if he goes much further in his program to have the party take a stand in behalf of prohibition.

Recently it was reported that Kern expects to play up the temperance issue along with Bryan, but there was no ground for it. To an Eastern paper which is asking prominent Democrats throughout the country whether they believe prohibition will be inserted in the national platform in 1916 Taggart has sent a reply expressing a view to the contrary, but adding that he has no idea what will happen in 1920.

For the present at least the Democratic leaders in Indiana seem to be somewhat more disposed to bury the hatchet and work together in hope of presenting a solid front in 1916.
